Mussolini Strikes Savagely at Albania, Rages at Germany

Miffed When Hitler Took Prague—Calls King Victor a "..... ...."

This is a third article based on the intimate diaries of Count Ciano, Mussolini's son-in-law, covering events that led to the invasion and conquest of Albania.—EDITOR.

March 2—April 16, 1939.

The diaries of Mussolini's son-in-law, Count Ciano, disclose that Hitler took Prague without bothering to inform his Axis partners in Rome and so provoked Mussolini's jealousy by this freedom of action that Il Duce swore vulgar four-letter words about King Victor Emanuel of Italy.

Mussolini sulked and vacillated. Once he threatened to check Nazi expansion by force. As a face-saving measure, he struck down his tiny neighbor, Albania, which he had planned all along anyway, but even that bore bitter fruit. It exposed the fatal weaknesses of Italy's military machine.

IL DUCE'S mood was savage and depressed for most of March and April, 1939. Ciano notes:

MARCH 3—"Pignatti (Italian ambassador to the Vatican) says that the Vatican is planning to make it appear that Italy opposes the nomination of Cardinal Maglione as secretary of state, on which the Pope has set his heart. I asked Il Duce for authority to disavow this. He replied, 'Tell Pignatti that I don't give a damn about the Pope, the cardinal secretary, or anyone who occupies such positions.' I carried out his instructions, but in different language."

MARCH 3—"Il Duce . . . told me, '. . . Socialism used to say all equal and all rich . . . we say all equal and all adequately poor.'

"I say the Japanese ambassador . . . Many reservations are made (about the tripartite alliance), and

Plan Speed Up Release of Key Industrial Men

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell today announced a change in the procedure of the industrial selection and release board here and the 11 industrial selection and release committees across Canada to accelerate the release of industrial key men in the armed forces.

In future recommendations of the district committees will go direct to the armed service concerned rather than first being reviewed by the board at Ottawa.

The board now will consider only matters of policy and procedure and regulate the activities of the committees.

Mr. Mitchell said:

"The general release policy of the armed services, first in—first out'

Seven Members Added to Staff

To cope with the increasing number of men being discharged from the services seven new members have been added to the staff of the Edmonton offices of the department of veterans affairs in the Redwood Building, it was announced Tuesday by D. E. Mould, district superintendent of rehabilitation.

Of the seven six are veterans of this war with service on the fighting fronts and the seventh, Maj. E. Newland, is a veteran of both this war and the last and will be detailed especially to deal with problems confronting older veterans.

Other veterans added to the staff were: Maj. E. W. Day, ED, Lt. A. L. Robertson and Cpl. George Nicol, all of whom saw service with The Loyal Edmonton Regiment in England, Sicily and Italy. Also appointed were PO. C. O. Simonson, FO. J. W. Romaniuk and S-Sgt. R. D. Gardner, all of whom saw service on the fighting fronts. More members will be added to the staff as necessity arises, Mr. Mould said.

Prosecutor Says:

Quisling Plotted German Invasion

By SAMUEL D. HALES
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

OSLO, Aug. 21.—(BUP)—The prosecutor in the treason trial of Vidkun Quisling today introduced captured German documents branding the Norwegian puppet as an arch-traitor who persuaded the Nazis to invade his country in 1940.

Rosenberg

Chief prosecutor Annaeus Schjoedt began the second day of the trial by reading from a mass of documents and sworn statements obtained from such top Nazi war criminals as Hermann Goering, Joachim von Ribbentrop and Alfred Rosenberg.

The highlight of the new evidence came with the reading of extracts from a diary taken from Rosenberg, in which the notorious Nazi Jew-baiter wrote that Quisling offered Germany bases in Norway and talked Hitler into invading the country, against the Fuehrer's judgment.

Henrik Bergh, head defence counsel, offered a half-hearted objection to the diary, but yielded when the court pointed out it

King Won't Give Any Information On Liquor Talks

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(CP)—J. A. King, Alberta liquor commission, speaking on behalf of Canadian commissioners meeting here to discuss the problems of supply and distribution of alcoholic beverages yesterday told newspapermen, "It's no use you asking for information."

The commissioners are meeting behind closed doors and have refused to indicate what progress has been made in their discussions .

Asked if he did not think the press should be given information about the meeting to relay to the public, Mr. King replied:

"No, I don't. If it hadn't been for the newspapers we wouldn't be in the mess we are in now."

Reds to Occupy All Manchuria Before Halting

LONDON, Aug. 21. — (BUP) — The Red Army advance in Manchuria continues and Soviet troops are still accepting the surrender of tens of thousands of Japanese. The Soviet communique tonight reported that 52,000 more Japanese prisoners surrendered today.

From CP, AP and British UP Dispatches

The dispatches told of the surrender of many thousands of Japanese prisoners and of the peaceful occupation of Manchurian cities and towns by various Soviet armies.

Japanese in Burma Refuse Surrender

RANGOON, Aug. 21—(BUP)—Japanese forces in Burma have refused to respond to Allied leaflets demanding their surrender, it was officially announced today.

The New Delhi radio said last night that Admiral Lord Louis Mountbatten, supreme commander in southeast Asia, had broadcast instructions to the Japanese for surrendering on Thursday at Rangoon.

An Allied spokesman said that southeast Asia command forces "took defensive action" yesterday when Thunderbolt planes attacked Japanese troops in the Burma area "who were surrounding Allied guerrilla forces."

The spokesman said the planes tried to do as little damage to the enemy as possible. Units of the Japanese 28th army were attempting to retreat east toward Thailand in great numbers and were threatening to isolate the guerrilla party which called for immediate aid.

Woman, Child Are Found Dead In Breton Area

Revealing three bullet holes, the bodies of Mrs. Marjorie Ruff, between 30 and 35 years old, and her four-year-old daughter, Ruth, were discovered in the heavy bush country at the northeast end of Buck Lake, in the Breton district, late Monday afternoon, according to word received by the Edmonton RCMP headquarters Tuesday. The bodies bore evidence of having been tampered with by animals.

Breton is roughly 60 miles southwest of Edmonton.

Within 15 feet of the woman's body, a .22 calibre single shot rifle was found, said by police to be the property of George DeWitt.

Discovery of the bodies was made by Mr. DeWitt, district farmer, and Mrs. Bertha Palfenier, mother of Mrs. Ruff. The dead woman's husband, Albert Ruff, is believed to be in Edmonton.

LEFT FARM

As far as could be learned, police said, Mrs. Ruff was living on the DeWitt farm. On July 31 she left the farm with her daughter to visit a forest ranger and his wife at Buck Mountain, near Drayton Valley. Mr. DeWitt, learning that the forest ranger was away from his mountain station, became alarmed when Mrs. Ruff failed to return, and the search was immediately instituted.

Discovery of the bodies follow-

Gas Prices Remain At Levels of 1941

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Donald Gordon, Prices Board chairman, said today the ceiling on gasoline prices that sets prices at the levels of September-October, 1941, remains in effect although gasoline rationing has been abolished.

There is nothing, however, to prohibit individual companies lowering their prices. It was recalled that at the time of price freezing and institution of gas rationing the price was advanced one cent generally throughout Canada.

Calgary Converts Huts Into Suites

CALGARY, Aug. 21.—(CP)—City council moved into the emergency housing business in a big way Monday evening, when it gave the city commissioners full power to purchase three huts at the No. 2 Wireless school and convert them into 80 suites at an estimated cost of about $50,000. The money will be taken from the post-war reserves.

Provided the city can get the necessary materials and manpower it is estimated two months will elapse before the suites are ready for occupancy.

The suites will range from three to four rooms and the rents will be $22.50, $25 and $30, according to size. There will be a rangette and wash basin in each unit.

In completing the deal to purchase three huts from the federal government, the city will ask that two other huts, included in the government's offer, be held until it is ascertained if 80 suites will be sufficient. If the government will not do so the commissioners were authorized to purchase all five huts at the offered price of $13,600.

Evidence Secret as Canadian Faces Charges of Treason

By DOUGLAS AMARON

FARNBOROUGH, Hampshire, England, Aug. 21.—(CP)—The high treason court-martial of Essex Scottish Pte. J. Galaher, 34, of Windsor, Ont., proceeded today in a red brick barracks block here, but Canadian army security precautions were so thorough that newspapermen were unable to obtain answers to any of their questions before submission to Canadian Military Headquarters in London.

This is the second day of the trial, at Corunna barracks, but not the slightest hint of evidence has been made public.

Galaher was captured by the enemy following the Dieppe raid in August, 1942, and after his liberation in France, he was arrested by the Canadian Special Investigation Service five months ago.

REFUSE COMMENT

Canadian army officers here refused any comment on the case and Canadian military headquarters in London was also silent.

Officers at headquarters said it was the first time in two Great Wars they had heard of a Canadian charged with high treason, an offence punishable by death.

United Kingdom officials said they looked on the court martial as a "Canadian affair," although

Canada-Mexico Tourist Trade Is Advocated

Great post-war possibilities in Canada-Mexico tourist traffic were seen here Tuesday by Dr. Francisco del Rio, Mexican ambassador to Canada, who is in Edmonton in the course of an official western Canada tour.

His Excellency, Mexico's ambassador to Ottawa for the last 16 months, was enthusiastic over Canadian tourist attractions and equally enthusiastic over Mexican attractions he feels Canadians should see as soon as the tourist trade returns to normal.

Mr. Del Rio is accompanied on his trip by his wife, his daughter Helena, 14 years old, and two nieces, Maria Luisa and Joesphine Mena. The party is staying at the Macdonald hotel.

Deny That Either Princess to Wed

LONDON, Aug. 21.—(Reuters)—An announcement issued from Buckingham Palace today officially denied the rumor reported in Libre Belgique, a leading Belgian newspaper, that "the betrothal of the Prince Regent Charles to an English princess will shortly be announced."

The newspaper did not mention the princess by name.

There are two unmarried British princesses, Elizabeth, 19-year-old heir presumptive to the throne, and Margaret Rose, who celebrated her 15th birthday today.

Prince Charles, Belgian regent who arrived in London on a personal visit Aug. 6, returned to Brussels Aug. 15. He is 41.

Nipponese Leaders Taking Precautions To Prevent Clashes

From CP, AP and British UP Dispatches

GENERAL MACARTHUR'S HEADQUARTERS, Manila, Aug. 21.—Japan made official announcement today that Allied occupation of the Japanese home islands would begin on Sunday next, when American airborne forces will land in the Tokyo area. Two days later the airborne forces will be followed by Allied naval forces and by troops carried to Japan on warships.

The airborne troops will land at Atsugi airport, just southwest of Tokyo. The naval units will drop anchor at Yokosuka, Jap naval base at the entrance to Tokyo Bay. They will arrive next Tuesday.

To prevent clashes all Japanese navy and army forces will be removed from the areas into which Allied troops will come before the occupation units arrive but police and gendarmes will be sent in to maintain order in the area from which the military will withdraw.

These precautionary movements are being made for fear Japanese troops may resist the occupation.

MOVEMENT STARTS

Movement of troops from the designated areas has begun, and the public has been barred from use of railroads in the affected area because all rail facilities will be required for troop movements. Anyone who ordinarily uses trains

Only 55 Combat Vessels Remain Of Nippon Fleet

By EDWARD L. THOMAS
Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

GUAM, Aug. 21.—(BUP)—Only 55 combat vessels, including six German submarines, remain of Japan's once formidable fleet of 382 fighting ships, Admiral Chester W. Nimitz' headquarters announced today on the basis of official reports confirmed by Japanese surrender envoys.

Rear Admiral Forrest C. Sherman, deputy chief of staff for Nimitz, said that Japanese officials at the Manila conference with General Douglas MacArthur had confirmed the "complete destruction" of the enemy's navy and the reduction of her once formidable merchant fleet to a relative handful of ships.

Sherman

The Japanese naval envoy at Manila, Sherman reported, said that the almost complete choking off of the island empire's sea lanes had brought an acute shortage of food, transportation and gasoline.

Daylight Saving May Be Rescinded

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Possibility of lifting sometime this fall the federal order under which Canada observes daylight saving time across the Dominion as a wartime power-saving measure is under discussion by a special cabinet committee but no decision has been made, government spokesmen said today.

Some sources believed the order would be lifted, probably in October, but nothing official could be learned.

Should the order-in-council be lifted, daylight time would revert to the control of municipal authorities.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—(CP)—Daylight saving time in the United States is expected to be cast into the limbo of repealed and unlamented war measures soon after congress reassembles next Sept. 5.

Fear Shortage 800 Teachers Alta. Schools

Alberta now faces an apparent shortage of 800 teachers in public schools of the province, a preliminary survey by education department officials revealed Tuesday.

This number, which may be reduced by Sept. 10, school opening date, is approximately the same as at the same date last year.

Discussing the shortage, Dr. W. H. Swift, chief superintendent of schools, said: "On Aug. 20, 1944, the teacher shortage was nearly 800. By Christmas it was reduced to 100.

FELL BELOW 50

"With the release of new teachers from Normal schools, the shortage ultimately fell below 50. Figures are not yet completely in for Aug. 20, 1945, but it would appear the shortage will be about the same as last year.

"It will apparently be necessary to employ again a considerable number of supervisors of correspondence school branches, as was the case last year.

"The department with the aid of school divisions is preparing a list of teachers in the armed forces for submission to the proper authorities, who have given some intimation that discharges will be expedited if these teachers agree to return to the classroom."

Definite figures on the teacher shortage will not be available until after opening date for the schools.

Huge Ovens Are Described

Plutonium, New Chemical Element, Explosive Force of Atomic Bomb

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
Associated Press Science Editor

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(AP) — An ordinary-looking pile of graphite bricks gave the name "pile" to the huge atomic ovens at Hanford, Wash, which produce plutonium, the new metal that explodes in atomic bombs.

Plutonium is a chemical element that did not exist on earth before then, and it is not known in the stars. The ovens are simply huge piles of graphite, pierced horizontally by narrow tunnels. These holes are filled with slugs of common uranium.

Essentially this Swiss cheese pile is all there is to an atomic oven. There are control instruments, and also reflectors for rays produced in the oven. Great concrete walls and other shields surround the piles.

The atomic fires have no flames rays and make no smoke. They emit intense heat and five kinds of atomic rays. Both heat and rays come from the process of transmutation by which the fires change common uranium 238 into the new metal plutonium. Plutonium replaces the rare and explosive form or uranium 235. Plutonium makes better bombs, and can be separated from uranium more easily. Finally

Some Tax Reduction Expected in Budget

By FRANK FLAHERTY

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Some—but not much—lowering of taxes can be expected in the 1945 budget which Finance Minister Ilsley will present at the belated parliamentary session opening next month.

While in point of time it will be Canada's first post-war budget, it will actually cover a period of more than four months of war and its tone will largely be determined by this fact. Also, demobilization and rehabilitation is an expensive business.

As plans are going forward for a large Victory Loan during the

2 PLANE CARRIERS

The two aircraft carriers Hayataka and Katsuragi of a one-time total of nine. Both are without crews and lying heavily damaged at Sasebo and Kure, respectively.

Two gutted hulls out of what were once eight light carriers.

No trace of an original five escort carriers or of 24 light cruisers.

Two of 19 heavy cruisers, both heavily damaged and without crews, in Singapore harbor.

Twenty-six destroyers, four of which were heavily damaged, of an original total of 165. Of 140 submarines only 22 remain, including six German U-boats, apparently turned over to the Japanese before the end of the European war and possibly used as cargo carriers to the Japanese-held bypassed Pacific islands.

LACKED SWEEPERS

The Japanese also revealed that they were unable to cope with mines laid by Superforts and the American navy because of a shortage of minesweepers.

The Japanese merchant fleet, once totalling more than 7,000,000 tons, now has been reduced to from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 tons "counting all very small ships, and very few of them are suitable for long voyages," Sherman said.

The Japanese armies, however, the staff officer said, are still very "formidable." The envoys reported that 5,800 naval aircraft remained, of which 4,000 do not normally operate with the army air force. The latter is considered generally smaller than the navy's force.

Order Is Expected To Cancel Division

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—No general order has yet been issued cancelling arrangements for the formation of the Canadian 6th Division, which was to have fought in the Pacific, but one may be forthcoming within a day or two, it was learned last night.

It was believed the delay in issuance of the cancellation order, which could be expected now in view of the Japanese surrender, resulted from a lack of information from high Allied authorities as to whether any Canadian forces will be required for occupational duty in Japan.

The question is expected to be discussed today at a meeting of Defence Minister McNaughton's staff council and it was believed this will be followed by an announcement of the cancellation.

Plan Speed Up Release of Key Industrial Men

is being adhered to, but it becomes increasingly important to secure the release immediately from the armed services of men whose return to civilian life, by reason of their skill and experience, will aid in reconversion, make possible the employment of others, notably veterans, or give very direct assistance in such vitally important projects as home building for veterans".

Arthur MacNamara, deputy minister, added:

"It is altogether desirable that during the next three months, when it is obvious that there will be great demand for men, several thousand men should be released from the forces ahead of their turn. This will lessen the number for whom jobs need to be found later in the season when employment opportunities are not at their peak.

"The committees should therefore recommend and the forces are prepared to release men more freely, and particularly in the following categories:

KEY MEN FIRST

"1. Men whose individual qualifications constitute them key-men in the narrow sense of the word, namely that they alone can do a particular job which is important in reconversion or construction.

"2. Men who it is shown would be of substantial use in priority industry.

"3. Men stationed in Canada who are requested to fill an appointment in which they are entitled to reinstatement even though the industry has not a high labor priority rating.

"4. Men who belong to classes such as coal miners, lumbermen, essential tradesmen in the building trades and in the construction industry. Certain other occupations will be defined relating to industries whose accelerated operation is of vital importance."

To Continue Sales Of War Certificates

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada, said yesterday there was no intention to discontinue war saving stamps and war saving certificates, at least this year or next year. He said it was too early yet to know whether there had been a falling off buying since V-J Day, but trend would be known by the end of the month.

Quisling Aided Nazi Invasion Of Homeland

would be impossible to have Rosenberg—now an Allied captive at Neurnberg—testify personally.

OFFERS SERVICES

Schjoedt followed with a document found by British police in the German admiralty in Berlin. The paper recorded a conversation between Quisling and German Grand Admiral Erich Raeder on Dec. 11, 1939, in which Quisling offered his services to Germany.

Quisling was quoted as saying that Norway had made a secret treaty with Britain guaranteeing the latter a safe landing on Norwegian soil in the event of war, and that he was ready to pave the way for a German invasion.

Asked by the court if he offered the Germans bases in Norway at that time, Quisling replied: "I don't remember."

REFERS TO COUP

The prosecutor also read a letter written by Rosenberg to the German admiralty, referring to a plan for a coup by Quisling's Norwegian Nazi party men, who were supposed to occupy key points in Oslo when the Germans landed.

When Schjoedt finished reading the documents, presiding Justice Erik Solem began questioning Quisling, who evaded direct answers.

Throughout the hearing, Quisling was kept under constant scrutiny by Dr. Johan Scharfenberg, a prominent Oslo psychiatrist assigned to observe Quisling's reactions and determine his mental status.

PROFESSES IGNORANCE

Quisling professed complete ignorance of the charges contained in the Nazi documents and said he was at a loss to explain the German leaders' references to him in their state records.

"Well then," the judge asked, "how do you account for it? Quisling is not a common name like Hansen or Jensen."

Quisling made no reply.

Maj. Arne Brogger, special observer for U.S. Justice Robert Jackson of the United Nations War Crimes Commission, revealed that the Nazi documents were found during a search of captured German state records.

DAMNING EVIDENCE

The first big break came with the discovery last July of a diary kept by Rosenberg, notorious Jewbaiter and author of the Nazi racial laws.

Clues uncovered in the diary led to the discovery of other damning evidence against Quisling and sent Allied experts to Nuernberg last week to question Goering, Rosenberg and other jailed Nazi leaders there.

Among the experts were Col. Robert G. Storey, Dallas, Tex., one of Jackson's staff, and Col. John Harlan Amen, former Brooklyn racket-buster of the U.S. attorney-general's office, who questioned the Nazis relentlessly until they had the evidence they sought.

ACCEPTED MONEY

Rosenberg's diary contained written evidence that Quisling persuaded Adolf Hitler and the German high command to invade Norway, although they were said to have believed Scandinavia could be kept neutral.

Prosecutor Annaeus Schjoedt opened the state's case against Quisling yesterday with a summation of the testimony obtained at Nuernberg. He stated that the Nazi leaders swore flatly that Quisling accepted large sums of money for fifth column activities to pave the way for the invasion of Norway.

Quisling, he said, had picked traitors stationed at key points along the Norwegian coast to help the invaders and planned a coup d'etat to overthrow the government.

The accused traitor listened in silence to most of the charges against him, but he leaped to his feet with an angry protest when Schjoedt branded him as a common thief who looted the Norwegian treasury of millions of dollars.

Editorials Urge Middle Course For Jap People

By The Associated Press

The Japanese were told today by two of their most powerful dailies, their future political activity must follow a path midway between past "power politics" and contemptuous "currying of favor" with the Allies.

The Tokyo newspaper Mainichi today carried on its front page three pictures of the devastation caused by the second atomic bomb at Nagasaki, important southeastern Kyushu naval staging base. Radio Tokyo reported one showed "the centre of the once thriving city has been turned into a vast devastation with nothing left except rubble as far as the eyes could see."

DAMAGE FAR OFF

A second photograph depicted "The tragic scene 10 miles away from the centre of the atomic air attack where farm houses are either crushed down or the roofs torn asunder." The third showed "The ghastly scene" at Nagasaki with a horse crushed beneath a wrecked building.

Mainichi and the Nippon Times were the two newspapers which outlined for Japan its political course.

"Since our endeavors to build up a Japan based on sheer might met with complete failure, we must henceforth tread the path of a peaceful nation," observed Mainichi.

The Nippon Times, noting plans for "Revival of intense political activity" already are under way, observed:

"If the trend is toward a political motive of currying favor with the Allied powers . . . and if there is any conscious design to shorten the period of Allied military occupation . . . the result will be unfortunate.

NEED NEW SYSTEM

"A new political system must be established in Japan, but it must be a system evolved sincerely and soundly as a natural development springing from the real life of the Japanese people. Anything else would only invite suspicion and contempt."

The editorials and the imperial announcement were broadcast.

King Thanks All Aiding in Victory

LONDON, Aug. 21—(CP)—The King today addressed both houses of parliament, meeting in the Palace of Westminster, and thanked the Lords and Commons for addresses of congratulation upon the end of hostilities in the second great war.

His Majesty paid tribute to all those who had worked and died for victory—those on the fighting and home fronts, the men of Britain's Commonwealth and her Allies.

"The time of destruction is ended", said His Majesty. "The time of reconstruction begins. To this great and difficult task we are resolved to contribute all that is in our power".

The King said the atomic bomb "makes it more than ever necessary that the grand alliance of nations should endure and prosper . . . It is my most fervent hope that we are entering upon an age of peaceful progress".

A rumble of applause rolled through the crowded chamber as His Majesty concluded. Prime Minister Attlee called for three cheers for the King and Queen and Princesses Elizabeth and Margaret Rose.

POSES MYSTERY

There is no indication why the court-martial is said to involve "high security" despite the end of the war in Europe last May.

The London Evening Standard said Galaher was arrested by a Canadian officer who saw him working as a laborer on a French farm, and asked him if he could speak English. The reply was a mumbled negative, but at the same time Galaher's uprolled shirt-sleeves revealed a "Mother" tattooed on his arm.

The officer concluded he was either British or Canadian and took him to base headquarters for further inquiry, the Standard said.

A Press Association dispatch from Farnborough said that besides Galaher "three more Canadians are confined in Reading jail awaiting trial on charges of collaborating with the enemy."

(CMHQ said it was untrue that "three" more were held on collaboration charges, but declined to answer the question whether or not a smaller or greater additional number was involved.)

CLAIMS "ANYONE" WOULD DO SAME

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 21.—(CP)—Pte. John G. Galaher, Essex Scottish veteran of Dieppe who is being tried on a charge of high treason by collaborating with the enemy before an army court martial at Farnborough, England, has written to his mother here that his conscience is clear.

Probe Background Murder Suspect

WINDSOR, Ont., Aug. 21—(CP)—Police checked with United States authorities in an effort to obtain more positive identification of Richard Henry Rowe, 51, former resident of New York state whom they describe as their chief suspect in city's 10-day crime wave which brought three murders.

Rowe, whose address also has been given as Battle Creek, Mich., told police he came here several months ago to look for work and knows no one in the city.

Suspicion in the stabbings of Frank Sciegiski Aug. 8 and Sgt. Hugh Blackwood Price late Friday or early Saturday was directed on Rowe when police found a knife concealed under his coat when he was arrested. He was one of three persons who appeared in court yesterday on charges of carrying concealed weapons.

It was believed another man or men killed William Davis, garage night watchman, who was beaten to death with a hammer last Thursday.

sibility for settlement of China's pressing internal political problems without recourse to civil strife.

Reflecting concern over the situation, already reported to have resulted in a series of clashes between National Government and communist troops in north China, Gen. Chiang dispatched an urgent message to communist leader Gen. Mao Tze-Tung at Yenan asking him to reconsider his refusal to come to Chungking for conferences.

CANNOT ACCEDE

At the same time Gen. Chiang declared he could not accede to the demands of Gen. Chu Teh, communist army commander, for participation in the Japanese surrender arrangements. Gen. Chiang previously had ordered Gen. Chu to take no independent action with regard to disarming the Japanese or taking over territory the Japanese now hold.

A wireless dispatch from Yenan, north China communist capital, said Chinese communists had captured Yangchung, on the Yangtze river 600 miles east of Nanking, the former capital of the Chinese National government.

The communists said they also were engaged in street fighting in Wuhu, 65 miles up the Yangtze from Nanking. The communists declared they had captured Chouhsiang, on Hangchow Bay south of Shanghai, which was defended by Chinese puppet troops. Chungking reported yesterday that these puppet troops had gone over to Gen Chiang's side.

HOW TO RELIEVE PILE TORTURE

If you are troubled with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not delay treatment and run the risk of letting this condition become chronic. Any itching or soreness or painful passage of stool is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once.

For this purpose get a package of Hem-Roid from Merrick or any druggist and use as directed. This formula which is used internally is a small, easy to take tablet, will quickly relieve the itching and soreness and aid in healing the sore tender spots. Hem-Roid is pleasant to use, is highly recommended and it seems the height of folly for any one to risk a painful and chronic pile condition when such a fine remedy may be had at such a small cost.

If you try Hem-Roid and are not entirely pleased with the results, your druggist will gladly return your money.

Pacific Commands

Future of High Officers Soon To Be Made Known

By JACK BRAYLEY

OTTAWA, Aug. 21.—(CP)—News of the fate of high-ranking Pacific officers and their commands may be released later this week, it was learned yesterday.

It was understood the defence committee of the cabinet this week will know definitely whether navy, army and air force token forces will be required for occupational duty in Japan.

In the case of the army this may be a brigade or less, in the case of the navy it may be a cruiser, two flattops and a few other ships, and in the case of the RCAF it may be a squadron using the new Lincoln bombers.

The token size of the forces will require commanders of lower rank than those previously slated for Pacific posts.

HOFFMEISTER TO RETIRE

It was understood, for instance, Maj.-Gen. Bert Hoffmeister, commander of the Canadian Army Pacific Force, soon will complete redistribution of his force and then go on retirement leave pending resumption of his work with a British Columbia lumber company. There has been no information regarding the leader of the small token force in the Pacific.

There also was speculation that Gen. Hoffmeister may be flown to the Far East as Canada's representative at the forthcoming Japanese surrender conference. Gen. MacArthur, Allied supreme commander, has invited Canada and other Dominions to have a representative in attendance.

At national defence headquarters, Lt.-Gen. Charles Foulkes this week takes over as chief of the general staff from Lt.-Gen. John Murchie, who becomes chief of staff at London, succeeding Lt.-Gen. P. J. Montague, who is retiring.

MAY BE SUCCEEDED

Rear-Admiral H. E. Reed, chief of the Canadian mission in Washington and slated for the top Pacific headquarters berth, likely will remain at Washington for a short period before coming to headquarters here. There was a possibility that he might be succeeded at Washington by Rear-Admiral L. W. Murray, on leave as chief of the Northwest Atlantic.

Vice-Admiral George Jones, chief of the naval staff, has been directly responsible for this command since the Halifax V-E Day riots May 7-8, but has returned to headquarters.

Admiral Murray, criticized in the Kellock riot report released Friday, is nearing the retirement age for an operational command and it is possible he may be given a less active role.

It was recalled that Navy Minister Abbott, in a statement released simultaneously with the Kellock report, paid tribute to the work of Admiral Murray and expressed the hope his "truly great service" would not be forgotten.

LIKELY SENIOR OFFICER

It was considered possible the senior naval officer in the Pacific will be Capt. Harold Grant, commander of the cruiser Ontario.

Explosive Force Of Atomic Bomb Is New Chemical

it raises by 100-fold the world's supply of atomic power resources.

Hanford, the city of 60,000, Washington's third largest, which mushroomed to construct the great atomic reservation of about 1,000 square miles, practically is gone. Now there are only a comparatively few workmen, who do little except watch dials.

All the processes of transmutation are done without human touch, and men don't even get close, because the rays would be dangerous. The processes are automatic.

THREE GREAT PILES

Three great piles were built. Their dimensions are secret, unless there is a tip in the official description of the eight-ton eight-foot cube of the first pile, built in 1941 in a Columbia University laboratory, not to make plutonium but merely for tests; or in the six-ton, domed-shaped pile at the University of Chicago, where the first atomic fire ever started by man was made on Dec. 2, 1942. This Chicago pile would have needed 70,000 years to produce enough plutonium for one bomb which weighs somewhere between 5 and 10 pounds.

At Hanford, each pile is separated by several miles. No one was sure at first whether a pile might explode, although now they appear safe.

Separate also from each pile by several miles is a man-made canyon: a chain of vats sunk in the ground and shielded by huge concrete walls. Water carries the hot uranium from the piles into the canyon vats to cool. (Water also is a good shield against the rays.)

CONTAINS PLUTONIUM

Each slug of uranium contains a small percentage of plutonium. How much is a secret, but the official description in a preliminary estimate gave the figure of about two pounds of plutonium to a ton of uranium. The vats separate this plutonium from the uranium, which is sent back to the ovens to make more plutonium.

The great size of piles and canyons can be guessed from the water. It comes from the Columbia river, and so much is used that if returned immediately, before cooling, it would raise the temperature of the great river. The coolness and purity of the Columbia waters were one reason for locating the plutonium project there. Impurities in water become radioactive from transmitted uranium.

Around the piles and canyons are "hot rooms", which are not hot at all. The name means that some of the rays may pierce the hot room walls despite shielding. Too many of these rays would make desks radioactive, cause human hair and clothing to emit rays, and even the air itself would begin spitting out rays. All this was proved in laboratory tests.

CAUSED BY NEUTRONS

This radioactivity is caused by neutrons, the particles from the cores of atoms which start and keep the atomic fires burning. Neutrons destroy man's white blood cells. But this fact makes it easy to safeguard the workers, by taking white blood counts. Millions of these cells can be lost without danger, and the counts catch risks in plenty of time.

The pile rays actually create about 30 different kinds of atoms. All emit dangerous rays, but mostly they do this only for a few seconds or a few hours. Principal new atoms include radioactive iodine and xenon, the latter one of the gases which form common air. High stacks carry these radioactive atoms, all in the form of poisonous gases, to heights where they disperse harmlessly.

Plutonium started as an idea. Before the war, Enrico Fermi, of Rome, Italy, and now of Columbia University, New York, focused rays of neutrons on ordinary uranium and produced a new metallic element, neptunium. This new stuff lasted only a short time. It emited rays of its own and changed automatically into a different chemical element.

DIFFERENT ELEMENT

This different element was plutonium. But no one made any. It was too expensive. But the fact of its probable existence was known to scientists of all the world. The only thing the scientists were not sure about was whether this unknown metal would split atom by atom emitting two billion electron volts of energy, just like the rare 235 form of uranium.

Since separating uranium was going to be a fabulous task, the University of California cyclotron was used to make just enough plutonium to be visible. It proved to be equally as explosive as uranium 235. The plunge that scientists then undertook, the job of making the unknown metal in quantity, is something fantastic.

V

The atomic fires which produce plutonium are started and maintained mostly by the uranium 235 atoms. These atoms are continually splitting due to being hit by neutrons which are set flying, all the time and everywhere on earth, by cosmic rays and radium. Each time a uranium 235 atom splits, it emits a lot of neutrons from its broken core.

TRAVEL TOO FAST

But these fresh neutrons are travelling too fast to break other nearby atoms of uranium 235. The speedy neutrons have to be slowed down, or their speed overcomes the attraction of the atom cores which they must strike and split, and they pass on through the atom's "universe" without doing their job.

The slowing down is done by the graphite in the piles. Presently the graphite produces enough slow neutrons to set up an atomic chain of explosions of uranium 235 atoms, and to keep these explosions going on as long as there is enough uranium in the oven.

This makes uranium 235 the key to all the atomic bomb processes, from forming a bomb of uranium 235 itself to producing other elements which also will explode.

(Tomorrow: Uranium 235, the master key to atomic power.)

Two Have Close Calls

Kiddies Have Charmed Lives

VANCOUVER, Aug. 21.—(CP)—The children of Constable Gordon Bell of the Vancouver city police seem to lead a charmed life.

Three years ago his elder daughter, Sharon—now seven years old—swallowed a can opener and had to be flown to an eastern hospital for an emergency operation.

Yesterday, when a parked truck in the Dunbar district slipped its brakes and ran up on the sidewalk, it crashed into a baby buggy standing near a shop window.

In the buggy was Constable Bell's 16-month-old daughter, Autumn. Holding fast to the handle bar of the buggy was Sharon.

Neither Sharon nor the baby were injured, but the buggy was slightly damaged.

Mrs. Bell was shopping in the store at the time.

Some Reduction Of Income Tax Is Expected Soon

autumn. It is obvious that the government is not trying to get back on a pay-as-you-go basis in its finances immediately. Some wartime taxes will be lowered or abolished before the time comes when revenues are sufficient to meet expenditures.

METHOD UNKNOWN

Some relief can be expected by the payers of personal income tax, particularly those in the lower income brackets. It is not certain yet whether Mr. Ilsley will proceed to relieve the low income group by reduction of rates or raising of exemptions.

A simple way to relieve the lower income class and also bring a measure of easing all along the line would be to abolish the "normal tax" of seven per cent imposed on incomes of single persons earning more than $660 and married persons earning more than $1,200, leaving untouched the graduated tax which increases in severity as incomes become larger.

The excess profits tax which now is at the rate of 100 per cent, partly refundable, and which discourages expansion of business is one of those likely to be abolished or reduced sharply.

CORPORATION TAX

The corporation income tax rate also may come in for an easing all across the board. Alternatively, the government may use it as an instrument to stimulate investment of profits by granting more liberal exemptions for corporation income spent on plant improvement and expansion.

Last year, when the present housing crisis was foreseen, the government moved to stimulate building by taking the sales tax off building materials. The sales tax may come in for further use as an instrument of fiscal policy in the new budget.

Instead of lowering it across the board, which is not impossible, there may be steps taken to remove or lower it on commodities which enter into production and of materials the government wants produced in abundance.

Reveal Mutiny Of New Zealand Troops in 1943

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(CP)—The New York Times in a dispatch from Wellington, N.Z., said Sunday New Zealand troops on furlough from North Africa mutinied in 1943 when ordered back to that theatre. It said the mutiny was disclosed with the government taking action to restore lost privileges to the participating troops.

Men involved in the reported mutiny, said the story, were veterans of the North African campaign shipped home under the government's policy of giving extended furloughs to men having three years' service. The dispatch continued:

OFFICERS PROTESTED

"They came over the protest of army commanders, who suggested a furlough in Britain instead, as an alternative demanded that the men be returned here only for a limited period.

"The government, which had used promises of furloughs as an inducement to the soldiers to vote it back into power during the 1943 elections, overrode all alternative plans and brought the men back for an indefinite period. When remobilization was attempted in September the mutiny developed.

"Veterans who had received a severe shock at the condition of the country for which they had been fighting planned a concerted refusal to return to camp. Of the 6,000 men who returned here, the army attempted to remuster less than one-third.

HUNDREDS CONVICTED

"The remaining men ordered to return abroad planned to mutiny, holding that thousands of exempted workers of the highest physical class should be sent away first. The army broke the large-scale mutiny by arresting some of the ring leaders and placing them aboard ship, but when these tactics were attempted elsewhere they led to street fighting."

The dispatch said "several hundred men were convicted at a court martial of desertion. The supreme court, on appeal, 'unanimously quashed the conviction.' The men then, the story continued, were dishonorably discharged, forfeiting their mustering out privileges "and denying their right to regain their prewar jobs."

The story said censorship precluded disclosing the situation until after the collapse of Japan.

Edmonton's Road Program

Now that the war has come to an unlamented close, there is not the slightest reason or excuse for a single day's delay in getting started on an adequate roads program for Edmonton. Next to modern low-rental housing the most urgent need in this community is a street improvement plan, complete with an extensive parks, playgrounds and general beautification program.

Even before the war, Edmonton had the worst roads of any city of its size on the North American continent. Failure to maintain those pre-war roads has resulted in a serious aggravation of the situation since that time.

Here are a few authenticated facts which amply establish the gravity of present circumstances:

1. Edmonton has only one-third to one-half as many miles of hard-surfaced roads as 200 other North American cities having the same population.

2. A survey made in 1938 showed that North American cities in the 50,000 to 100,000 population class averaged 105 miles of pavement each, each mile of which served 640 people, while Edmonton, at the same time, with a population of 88,000, had 60 miles of pavement, each mile of which served 1,468 persons. Since this city's population is now in excess of 110,000, the disparity is even more marked.

3. The amount spent in public works in Edmonton per capita is about one-third of the sums spent in other cities of comparable size.

4. The cost of operating a car on a mud or poorly-gravelled road has been determined at 1¾ cents more per mile than travel on paved roads.

Edmonton today is a dirty rundown city. Its roads and sidewalks are broken and potted. After rainfall its streets are rivers of mud. Dust sifts through the windows of almost every dwelling house while mud is tracked through the doors.

There is no reason why this condition should prevail now that the war is over. And Edmonton is in a sufficiently prosperous position to undertake improvements on an extensive scale.

Nearly a year ago, the mayor and commissioners are said to have made tentative plans for roads expenditures over a five-year period on the basis of $2,725,000 for paving and $150,000 annually for five years for grading, gravelling, boulevarding and curbing. It is believed they are now willing to raise this annual sum to $250,000.

Altogether this makes a five-year roads program of $3,975,000.

It is not enough. Neglect over a period of years has put Edmonton streets in such condition that they cannot be rehabilitated for a cent less than $5,000,000 and perhaps a good deal more.

Immediate action on this situation is necessary if this community is to maintain land values, hold its population and create a proper civic pride. Edmonton cannot be a city of homes without offering decent facilities.

The whole matter should be brought out in full dress debate at the next meeting of council.

Hong Kong

All the international hullaballo about Britain's intention to retain possession of the island of Hong Kong should not be permitted to alter British policy in this regard.

Britain acquired Hong Kong in a legitimate way and need for its possession as a means of guarding British interests in the Orient is no less great today than it was twenty years ago.

Conditions are not settled in China by any means. And there seems little probability of order coming out of the present chaos at any early date.

If Britain is to be one of the stabilizing influences in the world, she should have the courage of her convictions and maintain these strategic outposts which will enable her to exercise that influence.

There has been enough appeasement in the past. There is going to be enough weak sentimentality in the future.

And the prestige of the British Commonwealth of Nations will not be increased if she permits her territories to be lopped away at the insistence of friend or foe.

—V—

Back to Normality

The most momentous item in the news is neither the developments in the Pacific nor the awaiting political changes in Ottawa but the announcement by the Western Union that the singing telegram is back.

As soon as dulcet tenors and baritones can be hired, says the Western Union, recipients of telegrams will be greeted again by the chanting of good wishes by uniformed messengers.

This is stirring and vital news because it indicates a return to normality. But more than that, it shows that the perfect balance of our North American civilization is to be maintained.

We live, doubtless, in heroic times. There is a pomp and circumstance about this age that will mark it in history as the most dramatic period of all time. The Japanese war, for instance, closed on a note of high drama in the revelation that we were about to usher in the atomic era.

Energy will be abundant. Economics will be transformed. We are full of high and noble purposes.

It is all very thrilling and inspiring—and perhaps the least bit stuffy.

That is why the news about the singing telegram is important. It shows that in the midst of all these majestic movements and trends, the ordinary man will still find time to play the fool.

—V—

The All Time Low

If the late Count Ciano is to be believed (and there is no reason why he should invent the incident on his virtual deathbed), Prime Minister Chamberlain of Britain carried appeasement to such a length that on January 27, 1939, he actually submitted for the approval of Mussolini a speech which he proposed to make in the House of Commons.

Even after Mussolini is dead and discredited and the Italian Fascists broken and dispersed, even after the enemy has been soundly beaten, the recital of this shameful fact brings humiliation to every person of British blood. Surely the prestige of our race never fell to lower ebb in all our history.

It is easy to understand why the Axis was convinced that Britain was degenerate and helpless. It is easy to see why they launched into their audacious European campaign in the belief that only themselves were firm, purposeful and courageous.

It is not hard to see, either, why Winston Churchill met defeat at the polls. As lineal party descendant of the men who brought the whole British Empire to such shame, he could not have carried his party and its associations to victory if he had saved the world ten times over.

Discrimination?

Editor, Bulletin: Each day, in some way or other, it is becoming more evident that a certain class of our war veterans are being unjustly discriminated against. I refer to the government bureaucratic decisions that in every possible way veterans with service overseas shall receive preference in housing, job rehabilitation, and possibly later on in many other ways.

As an example, the writer joined the RCAF in February, 1940, at the age of 36, married and with a good job and home. Obviously this was not the case of being drafted or looking for a "soft berth."

Because of technical knowledge, I was made an instructor and for three years and a half played a part in training hundreds of aircrew for overseas operations.

Four letters to various commanding officers during the past five years and now having volunteered for the Pacific indicates my eagerness to serve overseas in any capacity, and I am now 41 and have a year-old son.

However, on applying for larger living quarters recently was told that any young man who served even a few months overseas would be given preference over me in housing accommodation, rehabilitation, etc.

Any "Zombie" taken overseas by force, or any young man who joined the RCAF in 1944, one week ahead of an army call up, will be given preference in all of these matters. And I am only one of thousands in the same unfortunate position.

This seems very unfair and I suggest that all RCAF men in this position immediately write to local newspapers and Department of Veterans' Affairs in protest.

Reply to Mr. Jaques

Editor, Bulletin: In reply to Mr. Jaques's many letters, especially the most recent one regarding the fifteen Poles arrested by the Red Army this spring. My opinion is that the Russians have dealt with them exceptionally leniently. I am sure that neither the British or Americans would dilly dally very long if they had proof that a hundred of their officers and men were killed by Italian or Frenchmen who used secret radios throughout the country for subversive activities against the troops in occupation.

As to the accusation that the Russians have some secret way of processing people to confess, that gag is really fantastic and has long ago outlived its usefulness. These same stories circulated during the trials of Tukhachevsky, Bukharin, Radek and scores of others tried, and shot in 1937 in the U.S.S.R. Anyone reading U.S.A. Ambassador Davies' book, "Mission to Moscow" would not make such a ridiculous statement. He was present at almost every trial of the above mentioned, sat no farther than ten feet away from the accused, and according to his description none of the men seemed to be ill treated, duped, or processed. If Mr. Jaques would read the book from page 147 to 169 he would clearly see that the accused were the fifth columnists of the U.S.S.R.; they worked with the secret service organizations of Germany and Japan organizing espionage on behalf of these countries to provoke war in the U.S.S.R. to deliver Ukraine and the Caucasus to Germany, and the Far Eastern province to Japan. No one can deny now that Germany did not go all out to get Ukraine and the Caucasian oil fields, or that she didn't have collaborators all over the world working for her as far back as 1935. Therefore it is of little importance how the Russians conduct their trials, in what court house or who the judge is. The fact is that the accused were the Quislings of the U.S.S.R. and the important thing is that the Russians were foresighted enough to shoot their traitors in 1937. We are doing it in 1945. The results are that during the whole war they had no fifth columnists to deal with in their country.

As to the statement that no one knows the members of the present Warsaw government. We do not expect Mr. Jaques to know them. The Polish people know them and are proud of them and the work they are doing. The people in Poland accepted the land reform brought about by the present government which is long over due, as it was promised to them by the Pilsudzki regime but was never carried out. Now you may rest assured that the people will support the present administration during the election, and no bullets will be needed to convince them.

Too much trouble has been stirrer up by agitators over the Curzon Line. However the fact that the Russians had nothing to do with the drawing up of this line speaks for itself. This line was established by the Western Powers in 1919, and there must have been some purpose in doing just that. By the Versailles Treaty the land east of the Curzon Line was mandated to Poland for a period of twenty-five years. Five years later the League of Nations without holding a plebescite gave it to Poland, and as Ukraine or the U.S.S.R. were not admitted to the League, the people could say nothing in their defence. The result was that the Ukrainian people who are definitely in the majority there wished to break off from the rest of Ukraine ever since. Even Mr. Churchill admitted that it was a mistake. It is very true that that land belonged to Poland some hundred and fifty years ago, in fact Poland at one time extended her boundaries as far as Dnieper river, but there is no point in digging up grievances like that; even Canada belonged to France at one time and now we belong to Britain and the fact that you, Mr. Jaques, favor the London-Polish exile government which was invited to form a coalition with the Warsaw government on one condition; that they agree to the Polish Constitution of 1921 containing the land reform. However they flatly refused, and if they should go back to Warsaw, they would carry on the same semi-feudal system that Poland has had for ages and up to 1939.

Mr. Jaques, as a member of the Canadian parliament, do not try at the same time to be an authority on foreign affairs. You have enough work improving our conditions right here, by seeing that the boys who come back from this war, as well as civilians, not have to ride the freight rods again from coast to coast, looking for work. See that they get a decent standard of living and when you have accomplished that, you will rightfully be in a position to criticize some other form of government.

Land Tax

Editor, Bulletin: The provincial and federal conference should be of vital interest to every property owner in Canada.

An opportunity to lay the foundation for a new order of social security that has been bypassed by all political bodies with few exceptions.

This is the problem of land tax with its added burden of assessed improvements. Few if any of the populated centres in this so-called free country that are not struggling under the burden of an iniquitous tax system.

For example, the pensioner, the aged, the farmer, the worker or persons of small income. Their income, is as a rule, fixed, and should misfortune intervene it may mean the loss of their savings, but greater still the loss of their home, however humble it may be.

Farm lands upon which factories or blocks are built are only worth what it produces. Therefore only income derived from its operation should be taxed. Taxes on income, as this war has proven, is one of the just forms of taxation. Let this be the foundation of the revenue of the country.

The multiplicity of taxes imposed on our people must go, and one of the first must be the land tax before a new era of hope and good-will can be achieved.

Answers to Canning Questions

Preservation of Food Depends on Care In Handling Raw Products.

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

Home canning is no longer a gentle art done only by ambitious and frugal women. Our government for the past several years has requested us to can surplus fruits and vegetables. And the response has been most gratifying.

It is only by having our shelves filled with our home canning efforts that we can be assured of properly balanced meals during the coming winter and spring. Then commercially canned foodstuffs can be sent to our service people still overseas and to the hungry peoples the world over.

Home canning is definitely an art, but it can be mastered by all. It has been removed from the haphazard status by our scientific laboratories.

Upon consulting a dietition, I found that there are many questions that all of us would like to have answered. So here they are:

Why is oven canning not recommended for tomatoes and a few other vegetables?

Because the temperature in the centre of the jar being processed does not reach a high enough level to kill any bacteria which might be present. Also, there are numerous records of jar explosions and serious injuries resulting from an attempt to oven can.

In canning fruit with stones or pits, should the pit be left in for flavor?

Pits may be left in cherries and plums without harm. There is an injurious acid in peach and apricot pits which makes it advisable to remove these stones. There is also a possibility of fruit stones exploding during processing.

What causes peaches and pears to turn dark brown after they have been canned? Can this be prevented?

There are a number of possible reasons. Fruit exposed to the air too long before canning may darken. This can be overcome by dropping the peeled fruit into a salt solution. Lemon juice or vinegar may also be used.

Either under or overprocessing may give this effect. Be sure to follow exact recommended times, counting from the moment the water is boiling.

Fruits canned without sugar will turn dark after opening if allowed to stand. They will react as fresh fruit. Use only stainless steel, glass or plastic knives in peeling fruit.

Overripe or underripe fruit may also turn dark. Enzyme activity in the fruit may cause some color change, which is one reason for recommending hot pack methods.

Pears will retain the original color if one tablespoon lemon juice is added to each quart jar.

When do you add sweetening to fruits canned without sugar?

Open the jar for a day before use, take the liquid from the fruit, add sugar to it, bring to a boil, pour over the fruit and chill.

How much syrup does it take for pint and quart jars of fruit?

This will depend partly on the size of the fruit and how tightly the jar is packed. Quart jars reqire about one cup, pints one-half to three-fourths cup.

How can one use excess juice left when fruit is packed hot?

This sweetened juice may be canned as is the fruit and used as a base for beverages.

Does mould on canned fruit mean that the fruit must be destroyed?

If mould is present on the surface, it may be removed and the fruit eaten with safety. If a heavy growth of mould is present, the food should be discarded since flavor and texture will be effected. If mould is present, the jar was not properly sealed.

What causes liquid to boil out of jars during processing of fruits and vegetables?

If the jars are packed too full or filled too high with liquid some will come out. This does not harm the fruit in any way. Variations of pressure or a sudden lowering of pressure in a pressure canner will pull liquid from the jars.

If a jar does not seal, and has to be reprocessed, does it have to be processed the full length of time?

Yes. Since few foods will stand this treatment, it is better to make use of the contents immediately.

Should bubbles appear in the jar after it is taken out of the cooker to cool?

Bubbles often appear because the food is still cooking. Once the jar is cooled, the bubbles will disappear. A very tight pack of food may show air bubbles.

Veterans Help Selves

By ELMORE PHILPOTT
In The Vancouver Sun

The mayor of Hull reports an appalling case. A war veteran and his English wife and children were forced to sleep in an open field for sheer lack of somewhere else to go. That is an extreme example of the seriousness of what we face.

Anyone who is not deaf can hear the rising rumbles of protest from veterans' ranks. Those rumbles could speedily grow into the kind of roar that Haligax heard on V-E Day, or that Aldershot heard when there was too much delay in sending one contingent home. Already there is talk—often foolish talk—about forcible seizure of empty properties. But it is all a warning of things to come.

One constructive result has sprung from all this. A Vancouver group of New Veterans has begun to organize for co-operative building of veterans' homes by veterans. It is not easy to run any co-operative. But each year the co-operative principle is being applied with more and more success in more and more fields. There is no reason why returning soldiers could not make a solid success of such a project. There is crying need for what they could produce.

I was struck by an item in the Soviet press. It was to the effect that Soviet soldiers, now being discharged in large numbers, are given free wood-cutting privileges to get the material to build their own homes. Surely that is the secret of so much of the success of the Russian system.

The Russians cut through the red tape—let the people on the job get local access to what they must have to do the job—then the rest is up to them. There is no waiting around for Moscow to give the okay, as we always have to wait around here for weeks at a time to get permission from Ottawa to make any move.

There is no country in the world that has the super-abundance of building materials that Canada has. We have what it takes to build houses. We have the men and women who can help build them. And we have a vast number of people crying out for places to live in.

In the Cariboo I saw men and women working side by side building houses that are as fine as any in the entire world. True, they are made of fir logs. True, the trees are but few hundred yards away from the finished houses. But the workmanship going into these new homes is really something to look at. The King of England, in Buckingham Palace, has no more beautiful nor wholesome place to live in than some of these pioneer jack-of-all-trades are building for themselves. For let nobody run away with the idea that these are mere rough-and-ready one-storey log shelters from the wind and snow. Some are great lodges, two storeys, with really wonderful handwork done on the logs around windows, doors and on the pillars in the main living room.

There is one great issue that must be faced—and which might as well be fought to the showdown first and not last.

That is, the shipping of building material to Europe must now take second place to our own needs right here at home. We have sent vast armies in two world wars to help quell threats to all mankind which originated in Europe. We have paid the price in blood. We have given away vast amounts in money. We will have to give away for years to come much of the food we produce.

But it is absurd to send most of our material to rebuild Europe while the housing situation is definitely worse here than it is overseas. Prolongation of such a foolish policy would simply cause a revulsion of feeling, maybe a demand to quit shipping free food.

Some of the war brides fairly recently arrived from England have already gone back. Why? Because, much as they like this country, they can hardly appreciate it if they literally have no place to live in here.

Japan's Dwindled Empire

(SCIENCE SERVICE)

Four islands, Hokkaido, Honshu, Shikoku and Kyushu, will constitute the principal part of the Japanese Empire of the future, according to the Potsdam proclamation. Some 525 small islands off the coasts of these four main islands will undoubtedly be included. Other islands relatively close to the homeland, which were Jap possessions for many years, will probably be left to the Nipponese.

This will confine the Japanese Empire to an area far less than half the size of B.C., but with more than 70 times as many people. It can not be an entirely self-supporting nation because much of its mountainous country is not adapted to cultivation. It produces relatively little cotton and wool for clothing. It lacks coal and many minerals essential to manufacturing. However, it can regain its place as the centre of a great fishing industry.

Squeezing Japan back to 1895 dimensions, the program agreed upon at the Cairo conference and confirmed at Potsdam, means shrinking the 750,000 square miles of territory claimed by Japan before Pearl Harbor to about 150,000 square miles. The difference is in areas acquired between 1895 and 1941.

Formosa was the first of the Japanese territorial gains in that period. In 1894 Japan made war on China, to acquire this 14,000-square-mile island. In 1895 China was forced to cede it to her. The population of Formosa was around 5,000,000, mostly Chinese, and the majority of the island's people still are Chinese.

Before Pearl Harbor, aggressive Japan, in addition to Formosa, had acquired possession or control of the southern half of Sakhalin Island (1905), Liaotung peninsula with its seaport, Dairen (1905), Korea (1910), Manchuria (1931), a large area in northeastern China (1937-41), and French Indo-China (1940). Japan acquired a mandate over the Marshall, Caroline and Marianas islands (except Guam) as a result of World War I.

The greatest loss to the Japanese Empire will probably be Korea, which they claim outright, together with their control over Manchuria, which the Japs officially call the Empire of Manchukuo. Both have strategic value, particularly against China and the Soviet Union. Their possession made the invasion and conquest of much of China possible in the present Chinese-Japanese war. Their greater value to the Japs, however, is their resources. They have furnished home islands with great quantities of foods, textiles, coal and the minerals that made the construction of war equipment possible.

But the war settlement plans have marked this empire of the Far East for such drastic trimming that only a handful of small islands contiguous to the Sea of Japan will be left to the Sons of Heaven.

Better Britain

DAILY EXPRESS (LONDON)

High wages. That is the slogan of success and progress. What the British people must aim at is a constantly rising standard of living. It means hard work. It means a good day's work for a good day's pay. But Britain is the mother of labour-saving devices, the ancient inventress of all the basic industrial processes which wipe the sweat from the brow. Never contemplate a return to the miserable days of economy-cuts and destruction of purchasing power.

Power of the Atom

Here is what atomic energy could do if and when it is ever made fully available for work for man.

Smashing the atoms in one pound of water would create enough energy to heat 100 million tons of water from freezing to boiling temperature.

A breath of air would operate a powerful airplane for a year continuously.

A handful of snow would heat a large apartment house for a year.

The pasteboard in a small railroad ticket would run a heavy passenger train several times around the globe.

A teacup of water would supply the power of a great generating station of 100,000 kilowatts capacity for a year.

If the atomic energy in matter is made fully available for mechanical use, all other forms of energy would be antiquated, such a fuels and explosives. Dams and electrical transmission lines would be as outmoded as stagecoaches.

These estimates were made before the war (1934) when physicists were just beginning to visualize the tremendous potentialities of atomic research. They were published in The Advance of Science, edited by Watson Davis and published by Doubleday, Doran and Company.

MARCH 14—"A long conversation with Wellington Koo (Chinese ambassador in Paris). . . . I advised him to come to agreement directly with Tokyo without depending on promises of help from the so-called democracies.

"News from Central Europe is increasingly grave. For the first time Von Ribbentrop has spoken to Attolico and told him the German program is complete: To incorporate Bohemia, to make Slovakia a vassal state, and to yield Ruthenia to the Hungarians.

"It is not known when all this will occur, but such an event is destined to produce the most sinister impression on the Italian people. The Axis functions only for one of its parts . . . with little regard for us. . . . Il Duce was cautious in his reaction."

Nazis in Bohemia, Italians in a Huff

MARCH 16—"German troops began their occupation of Bohemia. . . . What weight can be given in the future to those declarations and promises (of Hitler) which concern us more directly? It would be futile to deny that this humiliates the Italian people. It is necessary to give them satisfaction and compensation. Albania. . . .

"THE FUEHRER sends word (verbally, through Prince Phillip of Hesse, son-in-law of King Victor) that he acted because the Czechs would not demobilize, because they continued to maintain their contacts with Russia, and because they mistreated the Germans. Such pretexts may be good enough for Goebbels, but they should not be used on us. We are guilty only of dealing too loyally with the Germans.

"Il Duce . . . did not wish to give Hesse's words to the press ('the Italians would laugh at me; every time Hitler occupies a country, he sends me a message'). . . He decides we must take the German trick with good grace, and avoid 'offending both God and God's enemies.' He mentions again a possible blow in Albania, but he is always doubtful. . . . Too bad!"

MARCH 16—"I received Von Mackensen (Nazi ambassador in Rome) with calm. I congratulated him on the German success. He did not succeed well in hiding his surprise. This time the Germans really feel in their hearts that they have tails of straw (are grossly deceitful)."

MARCH 17—"World opinion is very depressing. . . . I saw some diplomats, the ambassadors from Belgium and the United States. They expressed their concern and indignation about Berlin. I confess that it is not easy to justify the German action. I allow them to deduce that we were in agreement, or at least informed, but it is so unpleasant to lie.

Fears German Coup in Croatia

"Il Duce . . . is preoccupied with the Croatian question. He is afraid that Machek (Croat political leader) may proclaim independence and put himself under German protection.

"He says, 'These are the only alternatives: To fire the first shot against Germany, or to be swept away by revolution which the Fascists themselves would precipitate. No one would tolerate the sight of the swastika in the Adriatic.' He is thinking . . . about reaching agreement with France . . . but abandons the idea. . . .

"I call Von Mackensen. . . . I recalled that the Fuehrer had said both to me and to Il Duce that the Mediterranean does not interest the Germans. . . . If such a promise should fail, the Axis would be broken. . . .

"Christich (Yugoslavian ambassador) asked to see me. . . . I denied rumors of an Italian military expedition against Albania. . . .

MARCH 18—Audience with the Pope. . . . He was much satisfied when I told him that Il Duce already had taken measures to check the German flood. . . . He was most concerned about Germany towards which he intends to follow a more conciliatory policy than Pius XI, but to do this co-operation is necessary from the other side or his efforts would become a 'useless soliloquy.'"

Ready to Fight 'Treacherous' Germans

MARCH 19.—"Il Duce has ordered a concentration of forces in the Veneto (province of Venice). If the Germans try to stop us, we will fire. I am more than ever convinced that this may occur. The events of these last few days have changed my opinion of the Fuehrer and of Germany. He is too unfaithful and treacherous. . . ."

MARCH 20.—"I received the engineer, Carnelutti, envoy of Nachek. . . . I summarized what he said in a note. The Croats are anti-German, but ready to fall into the arms of Berlin if we should repel them. Negotiations towards autonomy from Belgrade. If these should fail, an insurrection and an appeal for Italian military aid. Creation of a Croat republic bound to us by a treaty of alliance . . . including a customs and monetary union. Second phase: Personal union with Italy. Il Duce ordered me to accept the Croatian program.

"The King is more than ever anti-German. . . . In speaking with Il Duce he went so far as to call them rascals and beggars."

MARCH 21—"The Western powers have lost much ground today which was won by the Germans. News of the attempts to form a 'democratic bloc' has stiffened Il Duce in favor of the Germans. . . . Ribbentrop renewed the solemn promise to respect exclusive Italian rights in the Mediterranean, Adriatic and adjacent zones.

"The Grand Council met during the evening. . . . Balbo and De Bono trembled. Balbo permitted himself to make an unfortunate observation, 'you are shining Germany's boots.' . . . Il Duce me that Balbo always will remain 'the democratic pig who once was the orator of the Loggia Girolamo Savonarola di Ferrara (Masonic Lodge in Ferrara).'"

MARCH 23—"Il Duce has decided to move more rapidly against Albania. . . . Either Zog (King Zog) accepts the conditions we lay before him, or we shall undertake military seizure of the country. We already are mobilizing. . . .

"Chamberlain has sent a letter to Il Duce . . . asking the continuance of peace. Mussolini will answer it after striking Albania."

MARCH 25—"It seems probable that King Zog will give in. I am counting above all on the approaching birth of Zog's son. Zog loves his wife very much as well as his whole family. I believe he will prefer to insure his dear one a quiet future. Frankly I cannot imagine Geraldine (Queen Geraldine, granddaughter of a New York banker) fighting through the mountains of Unthi or Mirdizu in her ninth month of pregnancy."

The King Speaks Out And Duce Rages

MARCH 27—"Il Duce was furious with the King this morning, when King Victor found means of telling him three unpleasant things:

1.—He was not in agreement with the policy about Albania since he could not see the point of risking so much 'to win a few stones';

2.—That the offer of a title for Il Duce was made 'to forstall any repetition by the Fascists of the unexpected humiliation inflicted on the King when Il Duce, without the King's knowledge, was made Marshal of the Empire';

3.—That Konrad of Bavaria had heard in Monaco that Mussolini is called 'the gauleiter (German governor) of Italy'.

"Il Duce was commenting bitterly. He said, 'If Hitler had had to deal with a S.O.B. of a King (the Italian term was more lurid and anatomical) he would never have been able to take Austria and Czechoslovakia.'"

MARCH 28—"Madrid has fallen. . . . It is a formidable victory for Fascism, perhaps the greatest so far . . . Il Duce is overjoyed pointing to the Atlas opened at Spain, he said, 'It has been open there for almost three years, and that is enough. Now I must open it at another page.' He has Albania in mind.

The Ax Is Ready To Fall on Albania

MARCH 29—"Two meetings with Il Duce about Albania . . . He made these points precisely:

1—Army, navy and air force . . . will be ready Saturday;

2—Jacomini (minister to Albania) must exert diplomatic pressure on the King (Zog);

3—Unless he accedes we will send ships into Albania territorial waters and present an ultimatum;

4—If he persists in refusing, we will remove the blindfold, publish the declarations, and land;

5—Having occupied Tirana (Albanian capital), we shall summon the Albanian chiefs to a constituent assembly and, with Mussolini presiding, will offer the crown to the King of Italy . . . No one will react."

MARCH 31—"King Zog prepares to resist, a matter which annoys me greatly, because I consider it dangerous to fire the first shot in this disturbed and inflammable Europe."

APRIL 1—"Tomorrow Jacomini will appear before the King (Zog) with an outline of the treaty. . . . Should he refuse disorders will break out in all of Albania Thursday, making intervention necessary. We shall land Friday morning.

"During the afternoon, Serezzi, the new minister from Albania, came to me. . . . On the pretext that he was unable to exchange his Albanian money, he obtained a loan of 15,000 lire from Jacomini which I consider an initial bribe."

APRIL 2—"Jacomini telegraphed an Albanian counter-proposal, presented before Il Duce's ultimatum, but we ignored it. . . . At my suggestion, Il Duce decided to order a demonstration by 100 planes over Durazzo, Tirana and Valona.

"4 P.M. . . . From the telegraph office we learn that long code messages are moving from Tirana to the foreign office (in London). We cannot stop them. I give orders, however, that they be delayed, and that many errors in the code signs be made. . . .

"7 P.M. . . . Badoglio (field marshal, and later prime minister) wrote a letter to Il Duce criticizing the plan of operations. Il Duce paid no attention to it. . . .

"9 P.M. I communicated to Villani (Hungary) and to Von Mackensen (Germany) our decision to proceed with the military occupation. . . . Zog's son was born at dawn. How long will he be heir to the throne?"

Germany 'Behaves' And Duce Is Calm

APRIL 5 — "Germany behaves well. Von Ribbentrop has indicated that Berlin looks with sympathy on our action at Tirana because victory for Italy represents strengthened Axis power. . . . Il Duce . . . is calm, fearfully calm. He has decided to march even though all the world be pitted against him. . . ."

On April 7 Ciano flew over Durazzo as landing forces went ashore and over Tirana where he reported the streets empty and the Italian legation barricaded.

APRIL 7—"I informed Il Duce, who was quite satisfied, particularly since international reaction was almost nonexistent. The memorandum which Lord Perth (British ambassador) left with me during a cordial visit might have been composed in our office."

APRIL 8—"I arrived in Tirana at 10:30 after flying over the armored column which is marching on the Albanian capital. . . . I must admit that a powerful emotion has possessed me. . . . I received many Albanian delegations which paid me homage. I said that Italy will respect Albanian independence. All our fears of resistance in the mountains vanish with the news of the flight of Zog to Greece. . . . I distributed money to the poor."

APRIL 10—"Reaction abroad begins to lessen. It is clear that the British protests are more for home consumption than anything else."

Mosque in Rome? Vatican Is Horrified

APRIL 11—"I communicate to Pignatti I' Duce's decision to erect a mosque in Rome since 6,000,000 Italian subjects now are Mohammedans. . . . At the Vatican they are horror-stricken. . . . But Il Duce has made up his mind and is supported in this by the King who is always at the fore of any anti-church policy."

APRIL 12—"I arrive at Tirana by plane. . . . The crowd receives me triumphantly; there is some coolness among the high school students. . . . They dislike to raise their arms in the Roman salute. . . .

"There is great opposition to a personal union. All are in agreement on a Prince of the House of Savoy, or better yet they would like to have me. . . . I have long discussions with many chiefs; the most stubborn are those from Scutari, incited by the Catholic clergy, and whom it will be easy to convince as soon as I circulate the bundles of Albanian francs I have brought with me.

"There is a unanimous vote in the electoral body which is very enthusiastic.

"I speak from the balcony of the legation, and I am especially successful when I assure them that neither formally nor substantially will Albanian independence be prejudiced.

"Let it be understood that this success applies to the masses only, because I see the eyes of some patriots flaming with anger and tears running down their faces. Independent Albania is no more!"

APRIL 16—"The ceremony of offering the Albanian crown to the King of Italy takes place at the Royal Palace. The Albanians, who seem to be lost in the great halls of the Quirinale, are depressed. Verlaci (Albanian prime minister) pronounces the words he must say with a tired air and without conviction. . . . These Albanians who are a warrior people of the mountains look with amazement on the little man (King Victor) seated in a great gilded chair at the foot of which stands a gigantic bronze statue: Mussolini. They cannot understand what this is all about."

Amsterson's Time for 6½ Furlongs Is Lowered Two-Fifths

Pagan Star Marks Up New Track Record

The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean
SPORTS EDITOR

ERIC JOHNSON'S three wins in Monday's racing—Sonny O B in the first, Valinda Bob in the second half of the daily double and Papan Star in the sixth, lifted him into first place amongst the jockeys in so far as the Edmonton meeting is concerned.

Roy Russell had only one first yesterday and with 48 points is just two behind Johnson. "Red" McKenzie picked up two seconds and a pair of thirds and has 46 points. Joe Braddish, 39, and Alex Haller, 32, are third and fourth.

Following is the standing at the conclusion of the eighth day of racing:

THREE FOR YANKEE TRADER

MONDAY'S daily double pool of $6,198 was the largest of the entire meet and the Quinella melon of $8,670 was third high, just a few hundred below last Saturday's and V-J Day figures.

Yankee Trader's victory in a classy quinella field was the third straight since the current meeting opened, for the N. D. Campbell owned chestnut gelding from Okotoks. The Trader, whom the punters liked almost as well as Thirsk, showed no ill effects of Saturday's mile and sixteenth in heavy going and won easily.

Gay Guy, favorite in the seven furlong fourth event finished eighth. Mrs. Kipling's grey gelding ran second to Adenos in the $1,000 mile and sixteenth handicap on Saturday.

Amsterson, whose record for the six and one half furlongs was lowered two-fifths to 1.20 2-5 by Pagan Star yesterday, is one of the entries in the fifth race today. Pagan Star is listed amongst classy opposition which includes Shifty Sue who ran six and one half in 1:21 last Friday. Ebony Moon, Bragabout and Adenos also were named in the overnight sheet.

HERE AND THERE . . .

BOB SAWYER and Hal Stafford will be tossing 'em up for tonight's opening semi-final between U.S. Signals and Arrows. Both are the leading pitchers for their respective clubs, Sawyer having turned in five wins and Stafford six this season.

Bob Newsom of Philadelphia Athletics cast himself in the role of a one-man pitching staff today as he prepared to twirl both ends of a doubleheader against Detroit Tigers. Undismayed by his record of six wins and 15 defeats—three of the losses at the hands of the Tigers—Bob sought and obtained Connie Mack's okay for the idea.

The 20th annual tournament of the Victoria Park Golf Club at Camrose will be held on Sept. 2 and 3. Qualifying round of 18 holes starts at 7:30 a.m., Sept. 2. Allan Ernest is president of the Camrose Club and A. P. Zaph is secretary. Chas. McDonald will be tournament starter.

WINS 20th.—Hal Newhouser, only southpaw ever to be selected as the most valuable player in the American League and winner of 29 games for Detroit Tigers last season, became the first major league chucker to hit the 20 wins mark this season when he shut out Philadelphia Athletics 4-0 yesterday.

Third Win By Johnson On Monday

By HAL DEAN

SLICING two-fifths of a second off the previous record for the 6¼ furlongs on the Edmonton Exhibition track made by Amsterson on Aug. 15, 1944, Pagan Star went the distance in 1:20 2-5 while winning the sixth event (Mayfair Handicap) during Monday's eighth card of the current 13-day race meeting.

Jockey Eric Johnson, of Calgary, who handled the Pagan, already had registered successive victories with Sonny O B and Valdina Bob in the daily double and the three wins gave him a total of 10, one more than Roy Russell, who up to Monday had been leading jockey at the Edmonton meeting.

Pagan Star, black four-year-old colt owned by N. D. Campbell of Okotoks and third choice in the mutuels, was running fifth when he began to move up on the outside at the half. He passed Noble King, Hi Onslaught and Perfect Prince and finally caught Pardo in the stretch, beating her by over a length.

Pardo, brown three-year-old daughter of Yankee Doodle, entered by the Green Oaks Stable of Seattle, couldn't match the closing speed of Pagan Star, but retained the place position by two lengths, paying $3.60 and $3.00. Noble King, Ross and Goodman, Calgary, and pre-race favorite at just over 2 to 1, finished third and returned $3.10. Pagan Star straights were worth $9.00, place tickets bringing $4.25 and shows $3.20.

Sonny O B to Valdina Bob daily doubles brought $27.80, a total of 185 tickets sharing in the pool. Each of the 244 Yankee Trader to Coon Dog quinellas was negotiable at $29.55.

Attendance on Monday was 3,700 and the mutuels handled $71,394, third highest figure for the eight days of the meet, being exceeded only last Saturday's and V-J Day betting.

Sonny O B, winner of the first half of the double, went to the post at odds of 2 to 1, slightly favored over the second choice Seabread. Fourth at the half behind Hatteras Light, Seabread and Just Sam, Sonny was second at the three-quarter and passed Hatteras in the stretch. Seabread finished second, just a half length away and Polly Gower edged out Hatteras for third.

Valdina Bob, at 4 to 1, was second choice in the mutuels to Donald C, R. Ireland's Edmonton entry, but held the pole position from the start, winning handily. Red Chalk made a move in the final quarter, but failed to find clear racing room. Squaw Broom tired and wound up fourth, just in front of Isalite.

Witherinsiris, Lee Williams' two-year-old filly, which gave Silent Flame a great battle to the stretch last Friday, opened a commanding lead soon after the start and was never threatened. Dustbane, the favorite, ran second and Riggi, practically at even odds, was third and returned $2.25. Witherinsiris paid $7.20, $3.40, $2.15 across the board.

Flying Su, keeping close to the pace in the fourth race, finished strongly for a length victory over Chief Lon and paid $16.30 for nose bets, the longest price of the day. Chief Lon place tickets were redeemable at $9.60, and Eleventh Hour shows were worth $5.65. The Guy, quit badly after five furlongs and came last in the eight horse race.

N. Northwood's Ball and Chain, favorite in the mile and three-eighths fifth race, opened a long lead in the first furlong and held off both Sonny Rock and Nell Strome in a stretch challenge. Pilgrim's Pride, making his first start since coming from Vancouver, was second choice in the wagering and wound up fourth.

Yankee Trader had things pretty much his own way in the Quinella and always held a safe lead. Coon Dog made a great stretch run to gain second, a scant nose in front of Thirsk. It was a photo finish for the place spot, Thirsk having come from fifth in a stretch burst of speed.

Georgia Golfer Sets Hot Pace

LAKE FOREST, Ill., Aug. 21—(AP)—Louise Suggs, 21, of Lithia Springs, Ga., stroked a sizzling four-under-par 73 for a record-breaking qualifying score in the 45th annual women's western amateur golf tournament Monday.

Miss Suggs, duration southern amateur champion, finished three strokes ahead of a 136-player field battling for 32 match-play berths. Tied for second with 76s were two Iowa youngsters, Ann Casey of Mason City and Phyllis Otto of Atlantic.

Defending champion Dorothy Germain of Philadelphia, seeking her third straight title, was five strokes off the qualifying pace with 78, while favored Babe Didrikson Zaharias of Los Angeles faltered with an 80.

Cleveland's Hopes Brighten With News of Bob Feller

By LARRY MARTHEY

CLEVELAND, Aug. 21.—(AP) — Cleveland Indians will be torrid pennant threats in the American League scramble when Robert (The Rifle) Feller returns from the navy this week.

That's the prediction of tribe vice-president Roger Peckinpaugh, who declared: "We've played as good a brand of ball as any team in the league in the last month. Don't deal us out of the race now that Bob's coming back.

Bob Feller

Shortstop-Manager Lou Boudreau, sidelined with an ankle injury which will keep him out for at least two more weeks, cheered the return of the majors' one-time No. 1 hurler to the Indians' fold.

"We're going to keep on fighting for that flag," the youthful pilot declared, "and Feller's bound to be a tremendous help."

Commenting on reports that Bob would be better than ever after 44 months in the navy, Boudreau said: "If he's just as good as he was in 1941 when he won 25 games, it'll be plenty okay with us." The 26-year-old star rifled his fireball past 260 strikeout victims that season.

Feller won 76 contests in his last three years with the Tribe before joining the Navy Dec. 11, 1941.

The Redskins have been rambling at a fast clip in the past month, winning eight of their last 10 games and 19 of 29 since July 2. They're now one-half game out of third place.

Currently locked in a crucial battle with the second-place Washington Nationals, Indians play 17 of their remaining 44 games with the Nats and Tigers. Ten of these tilts will be home games for the Tribe.

"Feller will sail into action against the Tigers this week-end," Peckinpaugh declared, "his record this year shows he is as good as ever and ready for duty. I know he's anxious to rejoin the Indians. It looks like we've found an ace in the hole."

Ottawa Riders Hoping to Have Strong Grid Club

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—(CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders, returning to the Big Four Football League which suspended operations during the war, are attempting to line up an aggregation as starry as those that brought them into championship play in peace-time.

Jimmy McCaffrey, team manager and recognized in hockey and football circles as a shrewd customer when it comes to lining up players, has a number of stars under his wing now and his eyes on a couple more.

He said Monday that he was trying to sign Dean Griffing, former coach and star of Regina Rough Riders, and George Cullen, a Regina halfback. he has been in touch with both men but has received no definite indication that they will accept his offer. Brian Lynch, formerly with the Winnipeg Blue Bombers, is expected to join the Ottawa club shortly.

A westerner already signed by McCaffrey is Ken Charlton of Regina, regarded as being among the few triple threat players left in the game. Charlton reports here Aug. 27 to work out with the Rough Riders who have been training for the last two weeks.

Working out on the same field as the Rough Riders is Ottawa's entry in the Ontario Rugby Football Union—the Trojans. About 39 players are trying out for the ORFU entry.

To play in the backfield with Charlton, McCaffrey has Tony Golab, all-star material in pre-war days, and such men as Tommy Daley, who could run and carry a ball with the best of them, and Jimmy Abson.

Indians Adopt New Plan For Running of Grid Team

By ALAN HARVEY

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(CP)—With all the enthusiasm of earnest young scientists on the threshold of an epochal discovery, Toronto Oakwood Indians are convinced their new conception of football as a co-operative enterprise free from executive interference will transform the club into a Grey Cup title threat.

"Give us a lineman or two and they won't be able to stop us," said Annis Stukus, one of eight charter members of the new football compack which plans to banish front-office "dictatorship" by giving the players a deciding voice in all affairs.

Annis Stukus

The 31-year-old backfield jack-of-all-trades who came out of Gorevale Avenue in a Toronto working-class district to star with championship Toronto Argonaut teams, said the idea of a football team "for the players by the players," conceived by his 27-year-old brother Frank, took hold rapidly among Ontario pigskin veterans determined to get "the return they deserve" from the game.

"We want to end the system whereby kids have to serve an apprenticeship in football," said Stukus, discharged from the Navy last Friday after serving as a leading seaman. "Now the players will decide who gets what, and how much, instead of leaving it to the whim of an executive who probably never saw a football except from the grandstand."

Three Run Rally in First Big Factor Pats' Triumph

Army and Navy Pats took a firmer grip on second place in the City Senior Girls' Fastball League by defeating Mortons 4-2 last night at Kingsway Park. The win for the Pats also pushes them within reaching distance of the league leading Morton club.

A three run rally in the opening frame gave the Pats a lead that was never overcome by the losing club. They added another one in the sixth to wind up their scoring, while Mortons threatened with a run in each of seventh and eighth stanzes, but their effort fell short of the mark.

Singles by Thora Stewart, Lucella MacLean, Janet Anderson and a triple by Ruth Brault, plus an error gave the winning club their three runs in the first inning. For the fourth run in sixth, Ina Ward, Pats' left fielder drew a walk, went to second on a passed ball and completed the circuit on Lucella MacLean's double.

Pat McCready scored the losers' first run in the seventh, circling the bags on a couple of infield putouts after getting a life on an error.

Alberta Johnson notched the second for Mortons, and the last run of the game in the eighth moving around on an error and a single by Millie McAuley, after opening up with a single into left field.

Harridge Thinks Baseball Interest Will Increase

By WILL HARRIDGE
President, American League

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—(CP)—I believe baseball will enjoy a most prosperous post-war period, and should this come about it will be traceable largely to the splendid way the millions of servicemen and civilian fans received base ball through four trying wartime seasons.

Will Herridge

Through broadcasts of games, news stories on baseball carried in scores of army and navy papers, and the showing of the American league motion pictures — viewed by more than 11,000,000 servicemen and women through the past four years in all parts of the world—baseball maintained a close contact with our fighters and benefitted immeasurably through their interest.

The season which followed the ending of the First Great War saw our American league practically doubled. I foresee a parallel increase in baseball interest in the decade to come.

September 2 to 7

Fine Program of Sports Planned for Special Week

First of what is expected to be an annual affair, the recreation week set for September 2 to 7 inclusive, shapes up as a highly active one in the sport section.

With a full program arranged by the City Recreation Commission, local fans will have the opportunity of attending sports events ranging from a golf tournament to track and field meets.

In the track and field line, there will be the provincial interscholastic meet at Clarke Stadium on Labor Day as well as others. The Gyro club is arranging meets for each of its playgrounds in the city with a final field day on the Saturday at the South Side Gyro grounds. There is also a possibility that the meet for young boys and girls which was to be held at NWAC last Saturday in connection with the Lancaster Day, will be held during the week.

One event which the young boys will benefit by to a great extent is the baseball school to be held at Clarke Stadium with members of the U.S. Army Yanks' senior baseball teams doing the instructing. The school is being held through the co-operation of the U.S. Army and Edmonton Junior baseball league officials.

It also is expected that a provincial junior ball series will be arranged for the week. President Phil Horn and secretary George Ward of the local loop have been attempting to arrange a series for the past month, but so far have been unable to arrange a playoff with a southern team.

A full program of fastball has been arranged by both Kingsway officials and the City Intermediate Fastball League. There will be games every night at Kingsway Park, highlighted by a girls' all-star attraction on Wednesday of the week. Children will be allowed in the park free of charge on three nights. At Boyle Street, it is planned to have the intermediate men's and intermediate girls' finals played.

Other groups are also working on programs. The cricketers are hoping to bring a Calgary team here for a series and there is a likelyhood that a high-class soccer eleven will also come from the south city. A swimming gala is being arranged for the South Side pool and lawn bowling tournament are also being planned.

The community leagues are also expected to have active programs that week.

One of the major events will be the Alberta open golf tournament to be held on Sunday and Monday, September 2 and 3.

Canada Packers Enter Semi-Final Fastball Playoffs

Canada Packers advanced to the semi-finals in the men's intermediate fastball playoffs by defeating Street Railway 11-0 in the deciding game of the best of three series at Boyle Street last night. The Packers now meet the winner of the best of three game series between Burns and Woodwards in the semi-final round.

The packing plant fastballers really meant business as they pounded out a total of seventeen hits to the Radial men's three. Ed Popovich led the assault with three home runs, one in each of the second, fourth and seventh frames, which accounted for six of the winners' runs, by having a runner aboard on each occasion.

Joe Cowel and Fack Fedum were the other extra base swatsmen, each with a double.

Walter Barron on the mound for the Packers turned in a nice job by only allowing three hits and keeping them well scattered.

Line score:

Today's Sport Parade
By Carl Landquist

NEW YORK, Aug. 21.—(BUP)—An official eastern ivy league comprising from eight to 10 colleges is in the formative stage and may be ready to do business by the time the 1946 football season rolls around, the boys along tin pipeline insisted today.

Practically all of the schools that would be involved are in favor of the idea. It would bind the east—the only section of the country where the colleges have no official league—into a regular organization.

There even have been some reports that the league might spring into operation this season with standings to be based on the games previously scheduled, but there was little chance that the machinery could be set up that quickly.

Although work has been underway for some time, "differences of opinion" have held up completion of the league according to S. Burshnell, commissioner of eastern intercollegiate football.

"The immediate prospects for the league are no better than in recent years," he said Sunday night. "However, there are no serious objections to it. It is just that the people who would have to get together to do the job haven't been able to reach agreement."

"There has been a general feeling that without such a close-knit organization, the teams have all the advantages of a league without any of the disadvantages," Burshnell said. "However, I could be wrong and the establishment of such a league might come sooner than expected."

Yale pioneered the idea of an ivy league in 1934 when after several years of heavy losses, Thol-school officials decided to concentrate their play in the east. They played seven out of eight games with so-called ivy colleges that year and have had a heavy percentage of such contests on their schedules since then.

YANKEES RALLY IN NINTH

CHICAGO, Aug. 21—(AP)—Shut out until the ninth inning, New York Yankees staged a four-run rally last night against Earl Caldwell, White Sox night-game specialist, to defeat the Chicagoans 4-1 before 34,104. A single by shortstop Frankie Crosetti converted pinch singles by Aaron Robinson and Hershel Martin to put the Yanks ahead and a homer by outfielder Art Metheny, scoring Crosetti, capped the rally.

Walter Dubiel, Yankee right-hander, whose only run allowed was unearned, scored his seventh victory, but needed a lift from reliefer Jim Turner.

GIANTS CHASE HANK WYSE

NEW YORK, Aug. 21—(AP)—New York Giants hammered Hank Wyse for 14 hits, including three homers, to crush Chicago Cubs 9-3 last night as Van Lingle Mungo notched his 14th victory. The defeat cut the Cubs National League lead to 6½ games over St. Louis Cardinals.

A single, Mel Ott's double and Ernie Lombardi's 17th homer fashioned three for New York in the third. After adding one more in the sixth, the Ott men erupted for five in the seventh on Johnny Rucker's two-run circuit drive, his seventh, and a four-master by Mike Schemer with two on, his first in the big show.

Pros Say Haas Best Amateur Since Goodman

MEMPHIS, Aug. 21—(AP)—Big time golf had a new amateur threat today—the pros said "the greatest since Johnny Goodman"—and he was welcomed as a potential "boom to the game."

The menace is 30-year-old Freddie Haas, Jr., of New Orleans, who broke Byron Nelson's long winning streak Sunday with an 18-under-par 270 that won the $13,333 Memphis Open.

It marked the first time in nine years that an amateur had outclassed the tourney-tough pros in a 72-hole event.

"Shucks, I was lucky," remarked the rangy, smooth-swinging insurance salesman, who won the Canadian Amateur at Winnipeg in the '30s. "No amateur has a right to win one of these things. Nelson and Snead got off to a bad start, that's all."

But the vanquished pros did not brush it off so easily.

"Haas is playing remarkably fine golf," said Nelson, who finished six strokes back. "The way he's going he should hold his own anywhere."

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., added: "Freddie has as good shots as any of us and he's been playing tournament golf about as long. He's hit his stride."

Fred Corcoran, PGA tournament manager, said the pros considered Haas the greatest amateur threat to come along since Johnny Goodman, who won the National Open in 1933.

Committee Opens Meeting to Plan For '48 Olympics

LONDON, Aug. 21—(CP)—Overriding criticism and protests, the International Olympic Committee has begun to make plans for holding the next Olympic Games, probably in London, in 1948. This site may be chosen this week at a meeting of the committee's executive board.

Sigfried Edstrom of Stockholm, acting president of the IOC, Monday labelled the opposition that has been raised both here and in the United States over the proposed resumption of the great international sports events as "mostly nonsense."

"The Olympic Games have played a great part in the physical education of the peoples of the world and have helped them carry through better all the hardships of war," Mr. Edstrom said.

"The critics have based their objections mainly on the "disturbances and rows" kicked up at various meetings in Stockholm, Paris, Los Angeles and Berlin, he said.

Mr. Edstrom declined to predict where the 1948 games are likely to be held, but London is bidding strongly for them. New York and Oslo also have been mentioned as possible host cities.

"I do not think there is much doubt that Great Britain will stage the games," said Sir Noel Bennett, a member of the British Olympic Council.

If staged in London, the most likely site is the huge Wembley stadium, five miles northeast of the heart of the city. It escaped the war virtually undamaged. The Olympic Games have been held in London only once, in 1908.

During the war British scientists discovered a new raw material for textiles called "algin," which by a hitherto secret process is produced from sea-weed. Details have now leaked out about it.

TORONTO, Aug. 21.—(CP)—Personality parade:

Flt. Lt. R. S. (Tiny) Davis of Belleville, Ont., shared individual honors with Gnr. Pete (Cyclone) Taylor of Oakville, Ont., at a track and field meet for members of the Canadian armed forces at Nijmegen, Holland, recently. After gleaning 10 points apiece, Davis and Taylor jointly grasped the handle of a trophy presented by Princess Juliana of the Netherlands.

Walk down a Kingston, Ont., street with Sammy Mulholland and the chances are you'll be mobbed by the city's small fry. Chunky, broad-smiling Sammy is their superman. At 15, he's one of the leading pitchers in the Kingston Baseball Association senior league, one of the country's top hardball loops. Before Arnie (Lefty) Jarrell left Kingston Locos to sign a professional contract with Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League, he and Mulholland hooked up in some nifty hurling duels—and the older, more experienced Jarrell didn't always win.

Mulholland, who teachers admit he's "not quite so strong" as a student, rates highly with baseball men in Kingston but they insist he may prove better as a football or hockey player.

Incidentally, Mike Rodden, sports editor of the Kingston Whig-Standard says it's easy to understand why Jarrell hasn't had a starting assignment yet with the surging Leafs, now high in the first division. "It might be suicidal to Arnie's future to rush him into action when a place in the play-offs and possibly a championship swing in the balance," says Rodden.

Jarrell appeared in a relief role against Baltimore Orioles Friday night.

Calgary Defeats Manville 1-0

MANVILLE, Aug. 21—Calgary Standard Electrics took the first game in the best of three series for the Alberta intermediate girls' fastball title on Sunday when they defeated the Manville Bluebirds 1-0 here.

Jean Peatch got the only run of the game for Calgary when she singled, stole second, advanced to third on a hit by Jean Diniakos and was driven in by A. Sady in the third inning.

Jean Diniakos pitched for the winners and allowed 12 hits while striking out three. Dorothy Bryden held the Calgary club to eight hits and fanned four.

Next game in the series will be played at Calgary on Sunday.

It Says Here
by Bob Hope

BAD KISSINGEN, Germany.—We are putting up here at a press camp which formerly was a sanitarium. I won't say what kind of a sanitarium it was, but it has padded doors and the bell-hops all wear white coats and keep looking at me and murmuring: "Ah, reconversion already!"

The "Bad" in Bad Kissingen means bath, but so far I haven't been able to locate one here. This place is a sort of Bavarian Saratoga Springs. The Krauts used to flock here to soak in the mineral water they believed would cure everything from bunions to marital unfaithfulness. I tasted some of the water and all I can say is: "I don't think it ever will replace the old-fashioned mickey." This afternoon I ran into six soldiers and an officer, all wearing British uniforms with the Star of David shoulder patch. I stopped and talked with them and found the officer was Capt. Horter Ishay, of a Jewish Infantry Brigade. Though there were over a million Jews in the Allied armies, this was the only independent Jewish fighting unit. Capt. Ishay, formerly a lawyer in Palestine, has been in service five years, and now is up here helping Jewish displaced persons get back to their homes.

BOB HOPE

Our unit went through its paces this evening at Bad Neustadt for some Ninth Air Force boys, and afterwards we dropped over to the local EM (enlisted men's) club and hoisted a few beers with the guys. They were very glad to see us (meaning Neale, Patty, June and Ruth) and hated to see us (same thing) leave. We all sat at different tables and gave out with the news from the States, and signed autographs. (When it was over I was ahead four fountain pens.) There are a lot of displaced persons here—Poles, Russians, Czechs, Belgians and Slavs—and during the show a bunch of them were hanging around the outskirts of the crowd and, although they didn't understand English, they seemed to have a big time and laughed very loudly every time anyone else did. In fact, I signed five of them up for my next winter's radio audience (if any).

GIRLS—"—Yep it's the first sensible hat I've seen you buy! We can put it on top of the bridge table when the boys and I play poker!"

TODAY'S MARKETS

Toronto Stocks

TORONTO, Aug. 21—(CP)— Prices for the gold stocks slipped off fairly easily in the late period of today's Toronto Exchange market and a sizeable index decline was netted. The industrials weakened a half-point or more and the base metals had a more moderate set-back. Very little change was shown by the western oils at the close.

Alberta Issues Are in Demand

MONTREAL, Aug. 21—(CP)—Considerable demand for Province of Alberta issues marked dealings on the local bond market yesterday with bids on some of the internals improving as much as a point. There was little activity in corporation bonds. Prices were mainly steady but International Hydro-Electrics eased somewhat.

Truman Cancels U.S. Lend-Lease

WASHINGTON, Aug. 21—(BUP)—President Truman has ordered an immediate halt in the United States' lend-lease program, the White House announced today. Most of the United Nations receiving lend-lease aid were notified by mail of the program's halt yesterday and today, Presidential Press Secretary Charles G. Ross disclosed.

Ratify Charter

LONDON, Aug. 21—(CP)—The Moscow radio said last night that the presidium of the Supreme Soviet has ratified the United Nations charter.

"Freeze" Order Gives Relief Feed Shortage

A major part of Alberta is covered by the Dominion government "freeze" order on oats and barley which was issued Monday, according to officials of the provincial agriculture department.

The freezing order, issued by the Dominion agriculture supplies board, prohibits outward shipment of oats and barley from points in Saskatchewan and Alberta. It was termed "at least a start in giving needed relief" by officials here Tuesday.

CLARIFICATION

The government has asked for clarification of certain sections of the order, it was stated. For one thing, it is not known if the "freeze" regulations applies in the Peace River area.

This and other points are to be cleared up before an official statement is released by the Alberta department of agriculture, it was learned.

Alberta officials have estimated some 60 per cent of all farmers in the province are affected the recent drought, which has caused the serious coarse grain shortage.

The government has repeatedly requested Dominion officials to take action to ease the shortage, so acute in some areas a liquidation of livestock was threatened.

The situation on this egg market remains strong. Production continues to show further seasonal decline, and receipts as reported by registered stations show a decrease of 3 per cent over last week. The general quality is poor and the top grades about adequate to meet local demand and the filling of requirements from the southern part of the province. The market is very strong on all top grades and firm on grade B and C. Practically all grade B moving through the Special Products Board for immediate drying, with this activity on about the same volume as last week, and seven lots moved into this channel for the present week. Additional four carlots shell eggs were withdrawn from short-hold storage and four lots frozen melange from freezers all for immediate drying. Other movements consisted of one carlo grade C to Saskatoon and light L.C.L. shipments to Army Supply depots and Northern Projects. Dealers' quotations country shippers unchanged. POULTRY PRICES

The poultry market has taken on some inactivity during the past week due to the considerable drop in receipts of live poultry, especially fowl. General quality of fowl arrivals is fair to good and chickens only fair, due to lack of proper fattening, and the percentage of milk-fed is very light. Rail-grading is becoming more popular on chickens. During the week throughout the province, especi- six carlots of frozen poultry, mixed fowl and chickens, were inspected and exported to the United States. Dealers' quotations remain unchanged on both live and dressed poultry.

This Week In Farming

Every Tuesday by Stanley A. Williams

Government Official Urges Orderly Cattle Marketing

Orderly marketing of cattle came to the fore in Alberta last week, when Calgary marketing agencies reported a glut of lambs and cattle in southern marts. Agriculture officials in Edmonton were quick to warn producers that they would suffer if all livestock markets were clogged by too heavy marketings.

Latest plea for orderly marketing comes from H. Barton, deputy Dominion agriculture minister, who urges "reasonably distributed marketings", if full use is to be made of meat supplies in a meat-hungry world.

Says Mr. Barton: If the world's restricted meat supply is to be used to the fullest advantage, the orderly marketing of live stock is essential. Undue congestion on the markets must be avoided. Too many low grade cattle are dumped on the markets in the late fall and have to be carried over from day to day because processing capacity is overtaxed. This results in undue shrinkage, added marketing costs and low level prices.

CAN BE PROCESSED

All these cattle can be processed into acceptable products and used to advantage. The producer will never have a better marketing opportunity for such cattle. When supply begins to catch up with demand such cattle will be the first to suffer in value. All inferior cattle should be removed from herds across Canada and put to the only useful purpose they can serve, when they can be handled.

There are ample facilities in Canada to market all the live stock to advantage that will be offered to the market during the next twelve months, but this can only be done, says Dr. Barton, if these marketings are reasonably distributed.

George S. Black, provincial live stock supervisor, suggests that wheat can be used to a much greater extent in swine rations. The ideal combination of grain feeds for swine has been one composed of barley, wheat and oats. This combination feed, with the correct protein supplement, has usually ensured maximum gains. Drought conditions, however, have affected this picture in many areas, and farmers have been unable to secure sufficient barley from elevators when their own supply has been depleted. On the other hand, most elevators have less than carload lots of low grade wheat available.

Many farmers who normally feed only a limited amount of wheat are wondering if it is economical to purchase wheat at the elevator in lieu of barley, or whether it is advisable to ship their unfinished hogs to market.

The unloading of unfinished hogs to market should be avoided, says Mr. Black, since it would mean a further decrease in the volume of swine marketings and would reflect materially on our contract with Great Britain. Where rations have to be altered due to drought conditions, a higher percentage of wheat may be safely and economically used.

COMBINE OPERATION

Efficiency of operation of the combine is usually in direct proportion to the efficiency of the operator, says B. T. Stephanson, agricultural engineer for the Alberta department of agriculture.

There are four separate and distinct areas of the combine at which grain can be lost: the cutter bar, cylinder, straw rack and the shoe. The cylinder loss is usually the lowest, but the adjustment at the cylinder has a decided effect on the losses at the rack and shoe. In order to reduce total machine losses it is desirable that the losses at each of these areas be balanced as much as possible.

Loss at the cutter bar is usually one of the highest. It includes all shelled grain and heads that have been thrown to the ground by an improperly adjusted reel. Next in extent is the rack loss. This is the key loss in many instances, because so many adjustments of the other areas have a distinct bearing on the extent of the rack loss. Overloading results in higher rack losses. A high shoe loss is usually associated with a high rack loss.

CERTAIN VOLUME

A combine will handle only a certain volume of material efficiently and the limit of capacity will vary with different machines and the condition of the crop. In crops of heavy or lodged straw it is advisable to reduce the rate of travel if possible, to avoid overloading the straw rack.

PREVENT WEED SPREAD

Special attention will be needed during the next few weeks to prevent the spread of weeds by farm machinery. All harvesting and threshing equipment should be well cleaned before moving. These operating combines should make use of tightly woven sacks so that the weed seeds may be taken from the field and burned.

Where a separator is used, weed seeds should be burned at the setting before live stock are turned into the stubble. In spite of this, a considerable number of weed seeds may be eaten and spread around by the stock unless further precautions are taken. The range of live stock on stubble in the fall should be limited as much as possible so that weeds may not be carried to fields other than those on which they were produced.

Plan to Stamp Out All Black Markets

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—(CP)—The Prices Board announced last night suspension of the business license of Beaudry Bonbons, Ltd., Montreal candy manufacturing firm, which a Board statement described as "kingpin" in an extensive black market in sugar and repeated offender against rationing and pricing regulations." Donald Gordon, Price Board chairman, said in the statement that the Board "means business in dealing with black markets" and "we do not intend to allow the public, which has faithfully lived up to the rationing regulations, to be victimized by racketeers."

LONDON STOCKS

LONDON, Aug. 21—(Reuters)—The stock market was quiet today but the undertone was firm.

Foreign Secretary Bevin's statement on foreign policy was favorably received but operators appeared inclined to await the chancellor of the exchequer's statement today before increasing their commitments.

British funds and British railways remained firm.

International dollar stocks were easier in sympathy with lower New York advices.

The ROAD AHEAD

By Capt. HARPER PROWSE, M.L.A.

OUR first job, now that the war is ended, is to get our men home from Europe. They have been away from their families and friends longer than any troops of any of the United Nations. They are fed up with other countries, strange peoples and foreign customs. The idleness of waiting for transportation is driving them slowly crazy.

They were content, as those in Canada who await their return were content, to accept as an explanation for the delays that it was necessary to give priority to the transfer of men and materials from Europe to the Pacific. That need no longer exists. But somebody has been rushing a "business as usual" policy.

Early in August this announcement appeared in English newspapers: "Regular American Liner services with weekly sailings between New York, Boston, Southampton and Hamburg will begin September first. Six 17,500-ton vessels, each carrying 350 first-class and 200 tourist passengers with a speed of 19½ knots will be used. Fares will be £70 first class, £120 return, £40 tourist, £65 return. The six liners are fully booked until January, when fares will be reduced by 25 per cent."

Those arrangements were made while it was still impossible to get ships to bring our men home because, it has been explained "all shipping has been requisitioned for the Pacific." Those boats could carry at least 3,000 men each as troopers. They could make two trips each month. That means those boats could carry 35,000 men monthly to this country from Europe, and could bring home more than 100,000 before Christmas.

Canadians should know what is happening now to the men they have used to fight their war for them. Here is a report I have received from a medical officer stationed at one of the repatriation depots in England:

AN EXAMPLE

"Here you see an example of what we call "mass psychosis"—everyone going insane at the same time. Everyone is doing the same thing—nothing! No one can relax, no one can sit down. They just walk around all day long asking themselves and their friends the same question, always the same question: "When are we going to go home? You'll see—in a few months there will be real trouble. I know. They are all going nuts, I tell you."

At the present time it is expected to get all the Canadians off the continent by this time next year! It might be well for us to ask ourselves what kind of men we are going to get back, if they are kept in Europe for another long, dreary, useless year doing nothing.

Here is an extract from another letter I received from a good friend who is still overseas at one of the repatriation depots "The anti-riot picket has been increased to 300 men in this camp, but it is ridiculous. The picket is more apt to riot than anyone. They are as fed up and disgusted as everyone else. Fear of losing their gratuities is the only restraining influence on the men's and their officers' tempers."

NO USEFUL PURPOSE

It will serve no useful purpose to try to blame someone for this situation. But something must be done about it. And each one of you who reads this column can help. Each one of you must help. This problem is bigger than parties, bigger than politics. It is the first debt that we must discharge to the men whose sacrifices and efforts made victory, peace and freedom possible for each one of us.

Parliament is scheduled to sit soon. They have the power to force the service authorities to act. They will do it if they know the facts. Let each reader of this column write two letters. Write one to the minister of national defence at Ottawa. Write the other one to your local member of parliament—it doesn't matter whether you voted for him or not, he is your member now.

Tell them that we must get these men home. If you can include extracts out of letters you have received from your sons, or from friends, so much the better. Remember that the boats are available and it is more important to get our men home than to provide ocean voyages for tourists. Write those letters now!

Hans Bergland, 62-year-old resident of Fawcett, in the Westlock dsitrict, was discovered dead during the week-end by RCMP, it was learned here Monday. No inquest will be held, RCMP said.

Welded Bridge Urged For City

Construction of an all welded steel bridge across Rat Creek ravine on Jasper Avenue west of 75 street, using old street railway steel, is being urged by the Alberta Welding Association.

At a meeting of the organization recently a resolution endorsing the construction of such a bridge was unanimously supported and forwarded to city council.

It was suggested that rails from the street railway to be torn up from 97 street could be utilized in the structure. In the resolution members pointed out that such a bridge would benefit the city because it would shorten the distance from the centre of town to the outlying districts and would open to traffic the most scenic part of Jasper avenue.

Development of Water Project To Start Soon

Initial steps in developing the St. Mary-Milk River irrigation project in southern Alberta will be undertaken this fall, it was learned here Tuesday.

The provincial government has called for tenders on construction of the East Pothole Coulee dam, estimated to cost between $360,000 and $400,000, it was announced by Ben Russell, provincial director of water resources.

The dam, east of Spring Coulee and south of the town of Magrath, will be between the St. Mary and Milk Rivers. It will supply water to three surrounding districts.

TENDERS CALLED

Tenders, to be in by noon, Sept. 4, are called for canal excavation, rock excavation, concrete pouring, timber and piling work. The dam, a canal and connected structures are specified.

According to Mr. Russell, work will begin this fall, as soon as the irrigation season is over in the south.

Water rights on the St. Mary River are governed by international agreement as the river rises in the United States. The U.S. already has begun development work in its territory, and southern Alberta residents have repeatedly urged development of irrigation schemes on the Canadian side of the boundary, in order to establish claim to use of the river as provided in the agreement.

City Man Designs New Canada Flag

Recent discussion on the adoption of a national flag which shall be distinctly Canadian, inspired W. A. Quick of Edmonton to design and have made a banner which he believes is truly representative of Canada and her people. The dominant colors of this flag are gold, blue, green and white and in this selection the designer has sought to represent various phases of Canadian life and geography.

Gold and blue stripes form the outer field of the banner, and to the left of this is a nine-pointed star, encircling the Union Jack, to represent Canada's position in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

Around the star, between the points of which are nine smaller stars representing the provinces are two circles representing the "Walls of Truth and Freedom."

Four small and two large maple leaves are found in the area in the field outside and near the two "walls." The four small ones represent the original signators of the pact of confederation and the others represent fallen Canadians, who have died that their country might live.

Service Personnel Now on Way West

RCAF personnel who arrived on the same liner are expected here Thursday morning.

Before the Magistrate

William Zubiak, charged with stealing a watch from a city store and then refusing to pay for it "because he wasn't getting a square deal from National Selective Service" in his quest for employment, in city police court Tuesday was sentenced to 30 days hard labor at the Fort Saskatchewan jail.

The prosecution produced a letter from Selective Service officials, pointing out that in the hard rock miner's trip west from Ontario, he passed through the mining country "and could have got a job."

Send Messages

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—(CP)—Diplomatic representatives here of the Netherlands, Yugoslavia and Chile have sent congratulatory messages to Prime Minister Mackenzie King on the end of the war.

Dr. D. R. Easton Appointed Veterans Medical Officer

More than five years of service in the RCAF in Canada and in England terminated on Tuesday morning when Wing Commander D. R. Easton took over the duties of chief medical officer, department of veteran's affairs, from Dr. D. G. McQueen, who has held that, and other appointments in Edmonton for the last three and one half years.

With the appointment goes the responsibility for the medical welfare of all veterans in this district as well as the supervision of the Colonel Mewburn Pavilion of the University Hospital, the recently converted Government House, now being used for the care of veterans, and the medical care of veterans reporting to the Redwood Building on Jasper avenue.

Dr. Easton has not yet been released from the RCAF but is taking over his new duties at once, though he has not yet been back on Canadian soil for two weeks.

LIVED AT TORONTO

Prior to joining the services in June, 1940, Dr. Easton was associated with the Hospitals Division of the Ontario department of health and lived in Toronto. After his enlistment he was posted to various Canadian centres as medical officer and just before being sent to England in November 1944 he was district medical officer, No. 4 Training Command at Calgary so is no stranger to Alberta, nor to the personnel with whom he will be working while here.

He was accompanied to Edmonton by his wife and two daughters, 5-year-old Sandra, and Patricia, 13 months, who are temporarily living at the Macdonald hotel.

Dr. D. G. McQueen who is going into private practice as a surgeon in Edmonton as soon as his duties permit, originally came to this city from Tisdale, Saskatchewan, three and a half years ago and has been associated with veterans' welfare ever since.

NOW A DISTRICT

At one time his appointment was that of sub-district administrator and assistant medical officer, since Edmonton was then considered a part of the Calgary district. Now, however, Edmonton has become a district in itself and the appointment is that of chief medical officer. The duties of administrator are being temporarily carried out by F. T. Pinnel with offices in the Redwood Building.

Kiwanis Speaker Sees End of War

The end of war came with the termination of fighting in the Pacific, according to a view expressed by the Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKinnon, minister of Robertson United church in addressing the weekly meeting of the Kiwanis Club at the Macdonald hotel on Monday. Thornton A. Graham, president of the club was in the chair.

Dr. MacKinnon said that he was of the opinion that aggressor nations, as a result of the War of 1939-1945, had come to a realization that war does not pay. Confidence to maintain peace was expressed in the Allied Nations who had pledged their efforts in that direction.

Achievement of victory and peace brought with it a heavy responsibility. There was a duty to the returning service personnel who were not looking for special consideration, but looked forward to a more abundant life. Consequent upon the contributions they had made there should be greater opportunities for all and improved health and economic conditions.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION

What do you think of the Provincial government overall surplus for the fiscal year ended March 31 last, of $3,374,514?

THE ANSWERS

TONY HARGRAVE, student: It is a satisfactory state of affairs. Revenues have been good in recent years, and from all accounts there has been no great difficulty in collecting taxes. The province can put the surplus to good use.

ARTHUR HINTON, mechanic: Reporting a surplus always is a far more satisfactory operation than telling of a deficit. I am glad to hear that the government again is able to close a fiscal year with a surplus. There are many ways in which the money can be used for the benefit of the province as a whole.

* * *

GORDON NEWMAN, clerk: I think the results of financing for the year show a healthy condition of affairs throughout the province, and also indicate that public funds are being handled carefully.

Trucker Claims Hit by Soldier

A soldier who considered he had barely escaped being run over by a truck, operated by William Bellamy of Vilna, Monday night became a little irked by the incident, allegedly struck the driver and shattered the left cab window of the vehicle with his fist.

According to city police, the soldier had to jump back out of the way as the truck came to a stop at 96 street and 102A avenue. The driver stepped out of the truck to look over the situation and allegedly was struck by the serviceman. When the driver jumped back into the truck and locked the cab door, the soldier broke the window.

Bellamy estimated the incident cost him, in addition to a sore neck, about $15 worth of glass repairs.

DOROTHY DIX SAYS:

Urges Wives Forget Past Start With Clean Slate

Start Life Anew in Post War; Hold Not Post-Mortems, Indulge Neither in Morbid Confessions or Boastings

If there were one piece of advice more earnest than any other I would give to the returning serviceman and their sweethearts and wives, it would be this:

Wash your slates clean before you take up your old lives again. Hold no post-mortems. Indulge neither in morbid confessions or vainglorious boastings about your attraction for the opposite sex. If you have a secret that would make one who loves you unhappy to know, bury it in your own soul, and forget it. The war ended one phase of your life. You are starting another. Begin it with no hangovers from the past.

In no other war has jealousy played such a tragic part as it has in this. The green-eyed monster has stalked the soldier on the battlefield and terrorized him more than the danger of death has. It has been the maligned ghost that has haunted women in their homes and twisted their hearts with unknown dreads in its icy fingers.

JEALOUSY

Everyone who has come back from the front has told the same tale of how jealousy breaks down the morale of the fighting men more than any of the hardships and perils of war. They can fight the enemy hand to hand without flinching. They can endure suffering without a murmur. But their resistance is torn to tatters by the suspicion that some little blond cutie has found a new boy friend, or that their wives are stepping out with an old beau. And women react the same way. It is not the horrors of war that their men are enduring that tear them to pieces so much as the suspicion that their Toms, Dicks and Harrys are dancing around in canteens and making love to pretty girls.

Sometimes these suspicions are well-founded, for, as Mr. Kipling once observed, war doesn't make soldiers into plaster saints, nor does it turn gay young girls into Alice-sit-by-the-fire. And, whether true or false, wartime adventures are never going to be a safe subject for domestic conversation. No woman is ever going to enjoy hearing about Mademoiselle of Armentieres, nor is any man ever going to be grateful to the quisling who cheered up his sweetheart while he was gone.

FLOOD OF DIVORCES

It is being generally predicted that after the war there will be such a flood of divorces as was never heard of before. That is bound to happen when thousands of teen-agers got married because they were victims of war hysteria and felt that they had to have wives and husbands because everybody else was getting them. Some of them were emotionally mature enough to really be in love and they have stayed faithful to their fiances and wives and husbands, but thousands upon thousands of the youngsters were only capable of the calf love of adolescence, and with them separation has done its deadly work.

So we have the broken engagements and the wrecked marriages that are the aftermath of the furlough weddings. And we have the philandering husbands and wives and the girl friends who were going to wait, forever, for Johnny to come home from the war, but who couldn't stand a single week at home when all the other girls were having dates and going places and having good times. And no one need judge these youngsters too harshly. They have just been running true to form. They are at the playtime of life and they had to kick up their heels a little and they couldn't stay hitched, and now when they have got to put their heads in the noose again it is going to take a bit of doing, as the English say.

It is going to take a lot of forgiving and forgetting to revive these youthful marriages and make them successes.

GLAMOR COAT.—Sumptuously decorated in gold and jewels is the short glamor coat above which has grabbed the fashion headlines and is certain to hold them all fall and winter.

Air Secretariat To Cost About $800,000 Annually

MONTREAL, Aug. 21—(CP)—Canada estimate that it will cost approximately $800,000 annually to maintain a permanent secretariat for the international civil aviation organization, which is to have headquarters in Montreal. The figure is suggested in a draft prepared by the Canadian preparatory committee being studied by a temporary finance committee sitting under Sir Guranath Bewoor of India.

Sir Guranath said in a press interview yesterday, following a first meeting in camera, that the Canadian figure was but approximate and could not be taken as definitive.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

For the belated wedding reception, or for today's bride, use this brand new cake recipe. It's easy on sugar and red points and can be built up into a lovely glistening white tribute to the bride.

WHITE CAKE FOR THE BRIDE

One-third cup butter, 1-3 cup sugar, ½ cup light corn syrup, 2 cups cake flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ¾ cup water or milk, 2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.

Cream butter; add sugar gradually, beating well. Beat in the corn syrup until mixture is puffy light. Sift together the dry ingredients. Add vanilla to water or milk (water makes a more tender cake). Begin to add dry and liquid ingredients to the first mixture, about 1-3 of each at a time. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.). Large cake will take about one hour, smaller cake from 30-45 minutes, depending upon size. Frost with 2 batches of seven-minute frosting.

Three batches of this cake batter will make an oblong-two-layer cake or a three-layer round cake.

Size of pans: Oblong—one pan about 6 x 11 inches; second pan should be about 8 x 5 inches.

Round cake pans—one pan about 10 inches in diameter; second pan about 7 inches in diameter; third pan about 5-6 inches in diameter.

Tomorrow's Menu

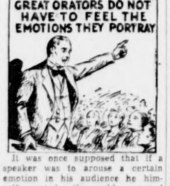

BREAKFAST: Grapefruit juice, oatmeal, raisin toast, butter, coffee, milk.

LUNCHEON: Tomatoes stuffed with cottage cheese and chopped nuts, warm rolls, butter, gingerbread, tea, milk.

DINNER: Boiled tongue, horseradish sauce, mashed potatoes, new spinach, rye bread, butter, blackberries, top milk or light cream, coffee, milk.

Debunker

It was once supposed that if a speaker was to arouse a certain emotion in his audience he himself must be thoroughly aroused by that emotion first. The truth, as found by psychologists, is that good speakers do not become so aroused, but apply their art intelligently to produce the emotion of their hearers. It is not necessary for a speaker, any more than an actor, to be stirred by the thing he is attempting to stir in the listeners. Emotional speakers are much more likely to fail their objective. A speaker should, however, have sincere convictions on the subject he is presenting—although this is not absolutely necessary.

Minute Make-Ups

Just a minute! Do you know that makeup can be quickly freshened by patting lightly over the face powder with a pad of cotton which has been dampened with skin freshener? This trick absorbs oily shine and, after adding a little face powder, you'll look fresh. The correct way to apply foundation cream is in little dots on each cheek one on the chin and one on the forehead. Then blend lightly and evenly over the face.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Worry is a helpful emotion only if it leads us to take steps which bring the worry to an end. If we can't do anything about it, we'd better stop worrying.

Mrs. L. S. who read Mrs. A. L.'s letter about her five-year-old "Mama-baby" thinks she is being unnecessarily concerned. "I, too, had a Mama-baby," she wrote. "He never went out of our yard to play. When school started, everyone said he would never take it. But I am proud to say he got high honors in school and all the teachers praise his work.

"He is well-liked and gets along fine with children, though he has none to play with at home, as we live way out. He is still a Mama's boy but not a sissy. I think it is all tommy-rot about an only child being selfish and spoiled. Some of the meanest children I know come from families of two or more. Usually the baby is plenty spoiled.

"My boy, his father and I, have good times together. When people come, they never fail to remark how nicely my boy acts. He always shares with others. It really gets me for people to condemn an only child. It's the way a child is raised that makes him spoiled. I am proud of my boy, but I do not brag about him in front of him. He is farther advanced in school and I tell him it is because he has read a lot. I think the only child is usually much more brilliant than children of a large family."

Much of what you say is true. Children are selfish, mean, or spoiled because of their experiences in the home, not because they come from large or small families. But the child from either is apt to have that favorable combination of genes which adds up to brilliance. So there is no scientific foundation for that last statement of yours.

People tend to "deplore" only children, for the child's own cake. He lacks the companionship of sisters or brothers. He has no one with whom he has to compete. He need not share his possessions or the love of the parents with anyone. Denied these wholesome experiences, he is less able than members of a large family to meet the rivalry and competition of the world. If he isn't spoiled and selfish, it is unusual, because his environment tends to make him so. Your emotion about your intelligent son gets in the way of your judgment and prevents your seeing the truth of these conclusions as they influence the multitude, if not your son.

Is your child shy? My leaflet, "The Timid Child," may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request to the Your Baby and Mine department of this newspaper.

Personal Health Service

ALL THE TIRED OLD MEN

In his book on Defective Memory, Absent-Mindedness and their Treatment, published by F. A. Davis Co., when you and I were young, Maggie, Dr. Arnold Lorand, of Carlsbad Czechoslovakia, refers to a patient in a clinic in Vienna who became ill and desired to go home but couldn't remember her address. The doctor gave her an inhalation of amyl nitrite, and in a few minutes the patient was able to remember her address. Amyl nitrite, like nitroglycerin (glyceryl trinitrade) tablet dissolved in the mouth produces prompt flushing of face and head. With return of more blood to the brain centres the patient recovered her momentarily lost memory.

The forgetfulness characteristic of advancing age becomes noticeable in some persons as nearly as does graying of the hair in some persons or dryness of the skin in others. Dr. Lorand, in his other book, "Life Shortening Habits and Rejuvenation," published by Davis in 1925, ascribes premature grayness and loss of hair, accumulation of flabby slacker flesh without actual excessive intake of food, and the premature appearance of wrinkles and creases in the skin, lassitude, impaired memory, and a yellowish dryness of the skin specifically to the thyroid gland failure, that is, functional deficiency of the thyroid. That's all. If you are curious to learn more there is only one authority to consult—your own physician. I'll say just this: In my judgment every one who is, looks or feels prematurely old should be sure to get an adequate daily intake of iodine. Instructions for this are given in the pamphet "Iodine Ration," mailed on request (no clipping, please) if you enclose stamped envelope bearing your address.

Now, frankly, old timers, when we begin to feel tired all the time, more than ordinarily forgetful or absent-minded and perhaps a bit more irritable or touchy than we were in our prime, it behooves us to put aside childish thoughts and face squarely the fact that there is something the matter. As long as we try to deceive ourselves that it is just overwork, run down condition, need of a good rest or a vacation, or any other vague and intangible condition, the ailment, whatever it may be, is unlikely to be checked or even retarded. On the other hand, I tell you I hate to utter a word that may cause a reader undue anxiety or alarm. So let's settle for this fair compromise: If you suspect you are prematurely aging, hold everything until you shall have been examined by your physician—a general health examination.

McKenney On Bridge

BY WILLIAM E. McKENNEY
America's Card Authority

Mrs. R. C. (Sally) Young of Piladelphia was rated for several year's the world's outstanding woman bridge player. When the war came along, Sally went into war work and in addition, drove a taxicab. However, I have seen her around at tournaments lately and she may be out to win back her crown.

I asked Sally once if she had any specific theories on opening leads, and she said, "Definitely yes. I think that most people make the wrong lead because they do not stop to think."

Then she gave me today's hand. "Surprisingly," she said, "many players will open the king of clubs. But listen to the bidding. East has bid two diamonds and later three spades, so he probably has five diamonds. West helped the diamonds, probably holding three, possibly four. South has bid clubs. Therefore the only correct opening is the ace of diamonds, because your partner may hold a singleton diamond or may even be void in diamonds."

In this particular case South cashed the ace of diamonds and led the deuce, which North ruffed. A club was returned. South won and led another diamond. Thus before the opponents started, North and South took four tricks.

Points for Parents

By EDYTH THOMAS WALLACE

Mother: "Let's go over the family budget together and see how we can either increase our earnings or cut expenses. We can manage if we all work together."

Father: "Don't let the children know I'm not making as much as I used to. There's time enough for them to worry about money when they're elder."

Sharing in the management of the family income is more likely to prevent future money worries than it is to cause them.

Shaw Fears Modern Magic Might Explode the World

LONDON, Aug. 21. — (CP) — George Bernard Shaw, in a letter to the Times of London, suggested yesterday that "monkeying with the atom" may loose atomic energy which will explode the world into a cloud of stardust and cremate the inhabitants with "instantaneous thoroughness."

"Like the sorcerer's apprentice, we may practice our magic without knowing how to stop it," Shaw wrote. However, he said, such an outcome "would end all our difficulties."

Shaw recalled astronomers' observations of stars "too small to be visible, which have suddenly burst and blown up, leaving nothing but a cloud of stardust called a nebula. Heat energy liberated in the explosion is beyond human comprehension."

"What we have just succeeded in doing at enormous expense, is making an ounce of uranium explode like the star.

"The process, no longer experimental, will certainly be cheapened, and at any moment heavier elements than uranium, as much more explosive than uranium as uranium than gunpowder, may be discovered.

"Finally, like the sorcerer's apprentice, we may practice our magic without knowing how to stop it, thus fulfilling the prophecy of Prospero. In view of our behavior recently, I cannot pretend to deprecate such a possibility, but I think it worth mentioning."

Bans Shipment Of Feed Grains

OTTAWA, Aug. 21—(CP)—The Agricultural Supply Board issued an order Monday prohibiting eastward shipment of oats and barley from parts of Alberta and Saskatchewan until Sept. 15 in an effort to meet the feed grain situation resulting from poor crops in some areas of those provinces.

The Board said the action was taken at the request of the departments of agriculture of Alberta, Saskatchewan and British Columbia. The order prohibits shipment pof oats and barley, whole, ground of oats and barley, whole, ground cats or oatmeal for human consumption eastward from designated areas in Alberta and the western half of Saskatchewan.

Britain's "First Lady" Faces Major Change

By ELLESIVA SAYERS

LONDON, Aug. 21.—Britain's "First Lady," Violet Helen Attlee, is a small town mother and housewife. Mrs. Attlee, her husband and four children, have lived in an old fashioned red-brick villa at Stanmore, for the past 13 years. Stanmore is a quiet Middlesex village not far from London.

Shopping list in hand, she waits in queues at the stores, chatting with other women of the community about the everyday problems of raising a family. She carries her groceries home in a little wheeled basket, or sometimes she rides to the stores on her bicycle. She has only recently started to use the small Hillman Minx automobile, which had been laid up in the family garage since the beginning of the war.

NO MAID

When I visited her, daughter Felicity, who is 20 and studying nursing, answered the door. There is no maid, only a housekeeper. Mrs. Attlee came down from the upstairs drawing room, where she had been working on the figures of her local savings committee, of which she is the organizer. She has collected about $20,000 since the beginning of the war.

She's a slim, gray-haired young-looking woman in the middle forties. She has a pretty smile, but neither a colorful nor a warm personality. She's efficient, business-like, dutiful, and can be quite brusque in manner.

FEW INTIMATES

Although she has worked consistently in the village, few people know her intimately. Mrs. Attlee is Commandant of the Red Cross. Once a week she drives a YMCA refreshment van from which she serves tea to hundreds, mostly airmen. During the blitzes she took charge of billeting arrangements for evacuees and worked in a rest centre. But all her outside interests are executed in a purely formal, almost uncommunicative, aloof manner.

In addition to her many war-related duties, she has run her 11-room home single-handed. She acquired the services of a housekeeper only recently. An odd job man also comes once weekly for gardening.

Mrs. Attlee is wrapped up in her home and husband. Her face lit up when she spoke to me of her family. The eldest daughter, Janet, 22, is a section officer in the WAAF. Felicity, 20, helps her busy mother in many ways. Martin, 18, recently quit school to join the merchant navy, where he's a midshipman. Alison, 15, is at school. Martin cabled from Nova Scotia recently, to tell her for the first time where he had been posted.

PROUD OF EARLY HELP

She is proud of the early help she has been to her husband. "He became an MP in the first year of our marriage, 23 years ago," she told me. But nursing has always been her main interest outside her home, husband and politics.

She doesn't know when she will move into 10 Downing Street, where she'll have a retinue of servants, including butlers, footmen, and at least one secretary. She will also have a country mansion at Chequers, Buckinghamshire. She is a simple woman accustomed to simple life. It is more important for her at the moment to add up the shillings and pence the village people have saved for the national savings campaign.

CHAUFFEUR

Recently she acted as chauffeur to her husband, driving him to Buckingham Palace to see the King. The sentries stood at attention when the small car drove through the imposing entrance. She accompanies her husband to many meetings. Now that the children are growing up, she is freer to move.

Nevertheless, she has little time for relaxation. Her husband rarely leaves the office before 10.45 o'clock at night. Only on week-ends has it been possible occasionally to relax. Then Mr. Attlee, "Clem" to his friends and colleagues, might potter about the garden in a peaked farmer's cap and plus fours, puffing his pipe as he bends to pull weeds.

MORE VEGETABLES

Since the war, there have been fewer flowerbeds and more vegetables in the garden. In the early part of the war Clem was president of the local Allotment Association, though he never rated highly his abilities as a gardener in the Dig for Victory campaign. He soon turned over part of his garden to the association. It is an attractive garden, with fruit and vegetables and a small lawn surrounded by lavender bushes and flower beds.

Clement R. Attlee is a man of modest tastes. He enjoys an occasional glass of sherry or claret. He reads voraciously — his favorites being Jane Austen's "Pride and Prejudice" and Pepy's Diary. Occasionally he helps in household duties, such as feeding the chickens. He is slight in build, has a soft voice, and smokes a long straight pipe which he continually lights with matches. He is a shy man, retiring, efficient, businesslike, and thoughtful. What he says will bear the keenest logical analysis.

COZY HOME

He is one of four sons and not "of the people". He was born in Putney, London, 62 years ago, son of a solicitor who was president of the Law Society. He was educated in Haileybury, one of England's best known public schools, and the University College at Oxford, where he took honors degree in history. Later he became a lawyer, but he took little interest in law, preferring to work in the east end of London where his sympathies with the labor movement developed and grew.

Inside their home are cozy, unpretentious furnishings, with many books and bookcases. In the drawing room a signed photograph of the present king has the place of honor. An airedale dog, an old friend of the family, blind in one eye, sleeps in a basket in the front hall. He usually accompanies Mrs. Attlee or a member of the family on shopping expeditions in the village.

From this warm, modest, homely house, Mr. and Mrs. Clement Attlee will move into 10 Downing Street to entertain cabinet ministers and their wives, ambassadors and statesmen of other countries. Mrs. Attlee will have to be friendlier to them than she was to me and other newspaper folk. Her parting words to me, spoken without a smile, were, "I hope you won't bother me any more."

Mexican Party Visits City

By KAY FORD

Visiting Edmonton for two days is the attractive wife of the Mexican ambassador to Canada, Mrs. Francisco del Rio, who says she and her party are overjoyed with their first visit to Western Canada. The tall, youthful, black-haired visitor was frocked in beige with dark brown accessories when interviewed at the Macdonald hotel.

She is accompanied by her daughter, Miss Maria Helena, 14 years old, and two nieces, the Misses Maria Louisa, 17, and Josephine Mena, 18.

Mrs. Del Rio has three sons, Francisco, 20, who is taking engineering at the University of Boston, Jose, 18, and Carlos, 16, who are attending school in Mexico. They visited their parents in Ottawa at Christmas and enjoyed the Canadian winter sports.

ACCOMPANYING HUSBAND

Mrs. Del Rio is accompanying her husband on his first official visit to the prairie provinces and they have visited Victoria, as well as Vancouver, Calgary, Banff and Lake Louise. She has found the west most interesting and is thrilled with the mountains.

Prior to coming to Ottawa to the Mexican Embassy, Mrs. del Rio lived in San Antonio, Texas, for 14 years while her husband was director of the Mexican Clinic there, after which time he accepted a post with the Mexican diplomatic service which took him to Montevideo, Uraguay, then to Guatemalo. Later he went to Washington on a special mission and then to Canada where the family has been for 16 months.

DIRECTS WOMEN

Mrs. Del Rio likes Ottawa, where she enjoys the many conveniences the Canadian homes have. She worked with the Latin American women in the capitol and headed their campaign for the "Save the Children Fund" and directed the group which met at the embassy to sew garments.

The party leaves Wednesday evening for the east and expects to reach Ottawa on Sept. 7.

City Wren Here on Leave

Wren Helen Murdoch, from HMCS Cornwallis, who is spending her first annual leave at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. I. Murdoch, 9022 85 avenue, has enjoyed every minute she has spent in the service and only wishes she had enlisted sooner.

Wren Murdoch enlisted in Edmonton, Sept. 1944, and left the city Nov. 12, for HMCS Conestoga, in Gault, Ont. There she spent four weeks training, three weeks of which were basic and had one week's writer's training. From there she was posted to HMCS Cornwallis, where she has since been stationed as a writer.

FIRST DAYS

"Our first three days at Conestoga were awful," she confessed. The girls were given shots for every disease imaginable.

Part of their basic training, exclusive of lectures and drill, included working parties, in which the girls "scrubbed up" everything from floors to all the upper and lower brass and windows, and even the gangways. Of the 150 Wrens at Conestoga, 20 were writers. Four of these were sent to Cornwallis and the remainder to posts scattered throughout Canada.

When the girls entered Cornwallis they felt they had graduated from the stage of initiation and welcomed the large new station as veterans.

"At first the size of Cornwallis dazed us," she said, "and we had to have someone take us around or we would have become lost."

8,000 PERSONNEL

There are approximately 8,000 personnel on the station, about 500 of which are Wrens, 50 per cent of these being married. The girls live in large units called "blocks," and each block is divided into 40 cabins, eight girls to each cabin, in addition to the lounges, or "foc's'le," writing rooms, canteens and galleys.

"Our lounges are attractive," said Wren Murdoch. "And most of our spare time is spent there, sitting around chatting, reading or just relaxing."

As for recreation, the girls have an amazing list to choose from. There are facilities for roller and ice skating, bowling, tennis, badminton, swimming, sailing, baseball, hockey, dancing and shows every evening. The station also has an orchestra of which they are very proud!

"In fact, we think it compares favorably with Tommy Dorsey," she said.

BOOKED UP

One evening of the week the Wrens are definitely "booked up" is Thursday evening, "scrubbing up night," when the entire block turns out to houseclean.

Wren Murdoch is in the SDO—Signal Distributing Office, which receives and dispatches messages by telegrams or teletype, to other stations. The phase of her work she finds most interesting is taking the signals and dispatches out to larger ships by means of the harbor craft.

"This is our only real contact with the larger ships," she said, "and all the girls find this most interesting."

The station also has a corner that has become almost as celebrated as Times Square. It is called "Wolf's Corner," and here the girls meet and leave their dates for the evening.

CORNER CROWDED

"Since we have to be in by 11:15 p.m., that corner is so crowded by 11:10 you have to push your way through," she laughingly declared. "We're never short of dates either," she added. "As a matter of fact, we're practically mobbed and every girl could have about six dates for one evening."

When queried as to what she wanted to do first when she got home on leave, Wren Murdoch answered quickly, "sleep in and look up old friends." She has one old friend, however, she will not have to look up, for Wren Margaret MacLean, also a writer, not only attended school with Wren Murdoch but enlisted with her and the girls have been together for all the [illegible] months they have been in the service. Wren MacLean is now spending a leave in the city.

Since the girls have been told by a senior officer, Commander MacNeill, OBE, that they would be discharged six months after hostilities ceased, their thoughts have turned to what they will do when resuming civilian life.

WONDERFUL TRAINING

"The training we have had in the navy has been wonderful, and equipped many of us with knowledge and a vocation that will enable us to go into work we could never have done before," she said.

Though many of her friends have [illegible] as "correspondents", Wren Murdoch simply would like to go into business with a friend. Before enlisting, she was employed by James Richardson and [illegible].

Things to remember when canning

Do —

Thoroughly sterilize all canning equipment.

Be sure to follow manufacturer's instructions regarding jars and jar closures.

Don't —

Re-use self-seal discs or rubber rings. Prepare large quantities of produce at one time because many fruits lose color upon standing; vegetables and fruits lose flavor and vitamins.

CANNING METHODS

Boiling Water Bath—For canning fruits and tomatoes.

Hot Pack—Prepared fruit is covered with boiling syrup or water and cooked slightly before packing in jars for processing.

Recommended because more adequate sterilization is possible, jar space is economized because fruit can be more tightly packed due to preshrinking; thus fruit floating is minimized.

Cold Pack—Prepared fruit is packed into hot sterilized jars, covered with boiling syrup or water, and processed.

Less efficient, because adequate sterilization is more difficult, fruit floats because as it cooks it rises to top of jar.

Processing—Filled jars, with lids adjusted, are submerged in hot water in a deep kettle fitted with a rack. Water covers jars by at least one inch. Count processing time when water begins to boil.

Pressure Cooker—(Be sure to have pressure gauge checked for accuracy.) This is the only safe method of canning meat, fish, poultry and all vegetables other than tomatoes. Other methods give inadequate sterilization of these foodstuffs, food poisoning and botulism may develop. To be completely safe, boil [illegible] tomatoes, meats, poultry, and fish 10 minutes in an open kettle before tasting or serving. Reboil leftovers same length of time before using. Such boiling will destroy botulinus poisoning if it should be present.

JAP BALLOON LANDS IN KANSAS — BUT NO BOMBS, NO DAMAGE, NO JAPS

This Jap balloon, a bomb carrier, caught on a tree on the farm of Roland North, near Bigelow, Kansas, last February, but no bombs were found and no damage was reported in the area.

Deflating the balloon are some civilian and army authorities who took over quickly after the balloon was found. It was the only balloon found in Kansas. Canadian authorities have announced one balloon-borne bomb landed at Belle River.

Allied Airborne Units Will Land In Japan Sunday

to ride to work was instructed to stay at home while the movement is being carried out.

That the Japanese government is uneasy and nervous is apparent.

Withdrawal of Japanese army and navy forces from the occupation areas was ordered after Tokyo propaganda broadcasts had expressed fear that some "hot-headed" Japanese army men might attempt to battle the occupation troops despite Emperor Hirohito's surrender orders.

The Japanese High Command sought to reassure the Japanese public which apparently feared that the occupation areas might be turned into battle zones. It also ordered "non-fraternization" and said that there would be no direct contact between the Allied troops and the general public.

"We emphasize this point," a joint statement of the high command and government said.

MAY CAUSE TROUBLE

Radio Tokyo and the Domei news agency both hinted that "Japanese hot-heads" might try to cause trouble when the Allied occupation units arrive, and the airborne troops will go in prepared for fighting, if necessary.

Rumblings foreboding a possible internal upheaval because of the Japanese army's distaste for alien occupation of their homeland came from several quarters today.

After repeated appeals from official and semi-official sources for maintenance of peace and order, radio Tokyo reported that acceptance of Allied terms was "resented by a considerable portion of the military men, and some may find it too much to bear."

"INCIDENTS" LIKELY

"Some of the hot-headed among them," continued the broadcast, beamed in English to North America, "may allow their emotions to get the better of their judgment and there is no telling what unfortunate incidents may occur which might endanger the present delicate situation."

Tokyo pointed out that a considerable portion of the Japanese army remained intact, "without any experience of actual defeat on the battlefield and with their morale unimpaired."

"To disarm and disband their units and to watch passively while the Allied armies of occupation disembark on the soil of Japan may be too much for some of the military officers to bear", the broadcast said.

HOPE FOR OBEDIENCE

At the same time, however, Tokyo expressed confidence that the greater part of the army would strictly obey Emperor Hirohito's orders to lay down their arms and submit peacefully to Allied occupation of their homeland.

In anticipation of just such opposition as feared by Tokyo, American occupation troops were preparing for the landing on Japan almost as though it were another amphibious invasion of Okinawa or Leyte.

An official spokesman said the initial occupation forces would be armed with all available weapons, presumably including planes hovering overhead with atomic bombs. Ground, naval and air forces all will participate.

ALL-AMERICAN FORCE

The first arrivals probably will be all American since insufficient time remains to muster troops from others of the Allied nations.

Plans for the occupation already have been completed. The Japanese emissaries were informed at their two meetings with General MacArthur's staffs where the landings would be made and what arrangements should be made by the Japanese to receive the forces.

That the Japanese government is worried over the reaction of the Army, many units of which are just nearing of the surrender, is evident.

With increasing stress, the government, the press and officials appealed to the populace for strict discipline, and order.

A message from the government to Gen. MacArthur indicated the necessity of keeping Japanese armed forces in the homeland for the present "for the maintenance of order and the protection of the general public."

These omens, seeming to portend some violent domestic commotion in the misled country, were reported by Japan's Domei Agency as well as the Tokyo radio.

STRIKING CONTRAST

In striking contrast to the notes of anxiety from Japan was the defiant broadcast from Singapore, reported by Domei, that Japan's armies at home and in Asia have "an unchallenged dignity which remains supreme" and "are prepared to crush" the foe. The Emperor's decision to surrender, however, was accepted.

The broadcast was based on a proclamation issued by the "supreme commander of the Nippon army" in Singapore. The commander was not identified. Singapore has been the headquarters of Field Marshal Count Juichi Terauchi, commander of Japanese forces in the southern regions.

The proclamation denounced Allied use of the atomic bomb, which it said had induced Japan to accept surrender.

A frank appraisal of the situation facing Japan was given to a Tokyo press conference by Dr Chuzo Iwata, justice minister in the new cabinet. He was reported as warning the people that the Allied conquerors might take a hand should local authority fail.

The Japanese of the future he said "will have to face a remarkably different situation than ab[e] did while she was still powerful militarily and financially, because she now is a defeated nation."

The premier, Naruhiko Higashi-Kuni, appealed for "strict discipline and equanimity." He spoke over a Japan-wide radio hookup.

The new chief of Tokyo metropolitan police, Sinya Sakai, warned that "post-war maintenance of peace and order will be drastically different from wartime."

Tokyo's newspapers handled the situation without gloves. They said "unrest, fear and despair" ran unrestrained. If that "leaders who plunged the country into war had no place in Japan's future" and that "henceforth all Japanese people should participate in the government."

The Tokyo radio told Asiatic listeners — in Japanese — that unconditional surrender," in the Potsdam declaration, evidently meant the unconditional surrender of Japan's armed forces only—and that the Allied occupation would cover only "militarily or politically important points."

ANOTHER REQUEST

Meantime the Japanese have sent another official request to General MacArthur that the dropping of parachute teams at American prisoner of war camps in China be halted.

The request asserted that local Swiss and International Red Cross officials had been called on to look after the prisoners and internees.

"Therefore it seems unnecessary for the United States to send special personnel to get into contact with the various camps," the message said, "to those who have already flown to some camps we are giving ample protection.

"However, it will as a matter of course be impossible for us to bear the responsibility for the safety of such personnel in all similar cases in the future. We hope that such a manner of contact is discontinued."

TO POLICE AREAS

While Nipponese army, navy and air forces "will be transferred immediately" from Aleutian and Yokosuka areas, Tokyo broadcasts said, "a sufficient strength of police forces, comprising Japanese police and gendarmerie, will be stationed in areas from which army and navy forces are to be withdrawn, in order to maintain peace and order."

The Domei broadcast followed an Imperial announcement that the hard-driven Japanese surrender envoys had returned to Tokyo to rush plans for the Allied arrival, which Gen. MacArthur said only would be "within 10 days."

The Imperial announcement, which is traditionally made public, was first knowledge that Japanese people at large had their envoys had gone to Manila at Gen. MacArthur's order.

Return of both the white-painted Japanese surrender planes was delayed by minor mishaps, and Japan notified General MacArthur by radio that Lt-Gen. Torashiro Kawabe, vice-chief of the Imperial General Staff and chief of the surrender mission, had landed at Tokyo at 8:30 a.m. today (5:30 p.m. Monday, MWT) after a flight from Manila by way of Ie Island.

McCoy Health Service

Shortness of breath is a symptom which may be mild or severe, and which is capable of arising from one of several causes. One of the most common causes is lack of exercise, and the person who is soft and out of condition will be winded by an activity he could carry on with ease if he had kept physically fit.

Vigorous exercise will cause anyone to become short of breath sooner or later, as strenuous exercise increases the work of the breathing organs about ten-fold. Shortness of breath will occur at that exact point where the breathing mechanism can no longer take in oxygen and throw out carbon dioxide as fast as the body requires. The trained athlete will be able to carry on longer before reaching this point.

Likewise the average person in good health will be able to keep going longer without shortness of breath than one in poor health, in whom the breathing capacity of the lungs has been reduced by disease.

With a mild limitation of breathing capacity, the patient may remain comfortable so long as he is at rest, but will become conscious of being short-winded when putting forth muscular effort, as in climbing stairs.

Shortness of breath may occur in many disorders; for example it is seen in heart disturbance, and in nephritis. When due to heart trouble, the patient may find relief by sitting up, whereas lying down position increases the symptom. This explains why the heart patient may remain propped up on pillows while in bed.

Shortness of breath is also found in anemia, diabetes, pneumonia, bronchial asthma and bronchitis.

Dyspnea, or shortage of breath is also produced independent of disease changes, being possibly the result of vigorous exercise, distention of the stomach with too much food which causes pressure upward against the diaphragm, emotional upsets and nervous conditions. It may also result from over-weight.

Operation of Physical Fitness Plan Outlined to Rehabilitation Council

"The township survey created a social problem in the western provinces that it will take a long time to solve," declared J. H. Ross, provincial director of the Canadian Vocational Training scheme in an address to the Council of the Edmonton Citizens Rehabilitation Committee in the Redwood building Monday evening.

Mr. Ross explained the operation of the physical fitness program in the province. The big problem facing the country today is to provide recreational and training facilities for the boys and girls on farm homes in the province. Because of the township layout of the western provinces homes are far apart and there is very little community life such as is found in eastern Canada, Mr. Ross explained.

INSTRUCTORS GRADUATE

At the sessions of the university summer school just completed 108 students were graduated as qualified physical training instructors and will return to communities in all parts of the province to organize and train groups of young Albertans, Mr. Ross said. During the last year 387 groups had been organized in 62 communities.

Handicap of the scheme at the present was in a large part due to lack of funds. Only two cents per capita has been allotted by the Dominion to defray the costs of the scheme, which is financed basically by the Dominion and the provinces on a 50-50 basis.

Alberta had the best record of any province in the Dominion when men were examined for the services, Mr. Ross declared. Of the male Albertans who were examined to see if they were fit for the service 56 per cent were graded as "A", which was higher than in any other province. One province, unnamed by Mr. Ross, had only 29 per cent grade as "A" category.

EXTENSION NEEDED

Stressing the need of extended services under the program Mr. Ross said that in his opinion a man is physically fit "when he goes to work or play joyfully".

The program offered only poor opportunities to returned men who wanted full time employment, he pointed out. A man usually cannot continue to be both a physical training instructor after the age of 45, and this means that at that age a man must be looking around for another means of earning a livelihood.

He suggested that any who hoped to earn their living by this method should first of all qualify as trained teachers, then they could have their specialized training as an additional qualification.

The council discussed the possibility of having the army use their surplus canteen supplies to set up a special trust fund to assist army ex-servicemen who found themselves in financial difficulties or in need of financial assistance. A letter urging the government to consider the creation of such a fund has been forwarded to Ottawa.

SPECIAL COMMITTEE

It was also agreed to appoint a special publicity committee to launch a campaign warning servicemen and the public to be on the look-out for "racketeers."

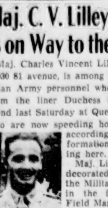

Lt-Col. E. H. Strickland, of the University of Alberta, reported that 360 ex-servicemen have registered at the university for courses beginning in September and he had been informed by Ottawa that twice this number would be applying for the courses beginning in January.

He also reported that the courts being prepared for married students would not be ready until November, and that already he had received more applications than accommodation had been planned for at present. Arrangements" have been completed to provide dormitory accommodation for married male students until such a time as the courts will be ready for them to bring their families to live in them.

ceiving compulsory military training at the University of Alberta has been received from Ottawa, Dr. Robert Newton, president, said here Tuesday morning.

A meeting dealing with military training for university students was to have been held in the east toward the end of August, and word regarding its outcome now is awaited by university officials here, Dr. Newton said.

Reds to Occupy All Manchuria Before Halting

are disarming. Tell us what to do —kill ourselves or escape to hills?"

"FOREIGN COUNTRY"

The Soviet broadcast said that Red Armies had entered the "foreign country" of Manchuria as liberators, not conquerors—a broad hint that Russia has subscribed to the Cairo pledge to return Manchuria to China.

The broadcast came as three Soviet armies completed the occupation of Mukden, Harbin and Changchun (Hsinking). Manchuria's three most important cities, and began mopping up scattered, disorganized units of Japan's beaten Kwantung army.

Japanese troops were surrendering by the tens of thousands.

Radio Khabarovsk, voice of the Soviet Far Eastern Command, was heard broadcasting an appeal to "respect the independence of the foreign country" which they were "liberating from the Japanese yoke".

AGREED TO RETURN

The broadcast suggested that Russia, first at the Potsdam conference and again in concluding a friendship treaty with China, had confirmed her willingness to return Manchuria to China.

Chinese sovereignty over Manchuria first was affirmed in the Cairo declaration of 1943 by the Prime Minister Churchill and Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek.

When Russia first entered the Far Eastern war, there was some speculation that she might have territorial designs on Manchuria.

The Khabarovsk broadcast told Soviet troops in Manchuria that they had entered a land "which looks up to you as liberators."

"Wherever you are, bear in mind that you are expected to treat the local population with courtesy," the broadcast said. "You are carrying out an historic mission on behalf of the fatherland. Behave accordingly."

HEAVY FIGHTING

Another Khabarovsk broadcast reported that a heavy all-day battle preceded the fall of Harbin, northern Manchuria's communications centre, to the Second Far Eastern Army after a 300-mile advance from the Soviet border.

"Many Japanese were killed in fierce fighting", the broadcast said. "Japanese troops offering fanatical resistance were massacred in the trenches on the approaches of the city, and others later suffered the same fate in the fortress on the northeast fringes of Harbin".

U.S. Army States

"Necessity" Governs Civilian Travel on Alaska Highway

Announcement was made Tuesday by United States Army officials in Edmonton that future civilian travel on the Alaska highway will continue to be governed on a basis of necessity and convenience until such time as adequate facilities for maintenance, subsistence and fuel supply are available.

In answer to numerous inquiries from organizations and individuals, both in Canada and the United States, Col. C. M. Clifford, commanding officer of the Sixth Service Command's Northwest district, stated the highway will not be thrown open to private individuals desiring to use it for pleasure driving. In addition, he pointed out, it is not yet feasible to grant anyone permission to travel in the area except upon the most urgent Canadian or United States government-authorized business.

The Sixth Service Command is directly responsible for operation of the Alaska Highway and its appurtenant projects until they are turned over to the Dominion government six months after the conclusion of hostilities, as provided by the agreements made between Canada and the United States in 1942.

OTHER CONSIDERATIONS

"There is no contention on our part that travel on the Alaska Highway should continue to be regulated because of military exigency," Colonel Clifford said in an interview at his headquarters. "However, there are other considerations of sufficient importance to warrant our continuance of general overall controls.

"For example, gas and oil may be purchased at intervals along the highway at commercial oil companies' pumps only as far as Whitehorse; beyond that point, and as far north as Big Delta, Alaska, there are no facilities for such purchases. From Fort St. John to Whitehorse there are no commercial establishments to provide food and lodging for travellers, nor are there any from Whitehorse to Fairbanks.

"There are no facilities at any point on the highway from Fort St. Jarn to Fairbanks—with the exception of two small garages in Whitehorse—to care for repair or breakdown problems with which private motorists may be faced," Colonel Clifford said. "Also, it appears more than likely that tire scarcity both in Canada and the States will continue to limit tire purchasing for some time to come."

UNDER REPAIR

Colonel Clifford further pointed out that the road from Edmonton to Dawson Creek in British Columbia now is undergoing repairs and gravel surfacing.

"This road—the only road at present by which the Alaska Highway may be reached from central Canada—is of primary importance to all motorists wishing to make the trip north," he said. "Until it has been built up and made passable at all seasons of the year, it would be inadvisable for any motorist travelling in a commercial-type vehicle to embark upon such a long journey. Certainly no motorist should attempt this phase of a trip without first ascertaining the condition of this access road."

According to Reginald T. Rose, secretary of the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, and F. Walker Blake, chairman of the Chamber's advertising and publicity division, travelling of the northern Alberta road has proceeded as far as High Prairie, and work is being pushed to finish the job before the end of October.

NO PREDICTION

Asked about the length of time that U.S. Army Service Forces troops may expect to continue on duty in northwestern Canada, Col. Clifford declined to make any prediction.

"We have certain definite commitments under agreements made between Canada and the United States," he stated. "Our mission will continue under the terms of those agreements until all arrangements have been concluded for turning over our properties to the Canadian government.

Canada-Mexico Tourist Trade Is Advocated

celiency believes Vancouver will be the principal west coast airport as far as trade with Mexico is concerned. He said Mexico is anxious direct steamship lines will be established between Canada and his country, so that trade will not be hampered by transport difficulties in the post-war era.

'Canada and Mexico have very much to develop in co-operation," Dr. Del Rio said Tuesday noon. "We have tropical fruits and oil to trade with you, and we are interested in wheat and agriculture machinery in return."

AN ATTRACTION

Severe winters here would attract many Canadians to Mexico, but in return to hot Mexican summers would send many from the southern country to a cool holiday in Canada.

"While you can show us mountains, can show you jungles; you show us snow, and we show you volcanoes; you show us beautiful mountain lakes and we will show you our tropical lakes." the ambassador said of tourist attractions each country has for the other. "As soon as transportation is available, it is possible many Mexicans will travel to Canada, and we hope Canadians will come to us."

His Excellency planned to meet His Hon. Lt.-Gov. J. C. Bowen, and Hon. W. A. Fallow, acting premier, Tuesday afternoon.

He plans to leave for Winnipeg Wednesday night, and will be back in Ottawa by Sept. 6 or 7.

They followed two days charged soldiers, a furniture store manager, another man and a woman who faced similar charges in police court Saturday.

Universities Shorten Military Training
